TikTok, Instagram & Telegram Income System — How locals Can Turn Content and Audience Into Legitimate Income. First Edition · September 2026.

What this course is

A practical, your country-specific system for building an audience on TikTok, Instagram and Telegram and then converting that audience into money that can actually reach a local bank or wallet. It covers niche selection, profile setup, content pillars, hooks, short-form video, faceless formats, storytelling, community building, and six separate monetization paths, each with the honest mechanics and the honest risks.

What this course is not

It is not a promise that followers become income. It is not a guide to platform ad revenue, because your country is not included in YouTube\u2019s Partner Program, TikTok\u2019s Creator Rewards is limited to roughly fourteen countries with none in Africa, and Meta\u2019s in-stream ads rolled out to Kenya, Nigeria and Ghana but not your country. It is not financial, legal or investment advice, and it does not guarantee reach, followers, sponsors or sales.

DISCLAIMER — READ THIS ONCE, PROPERLY

This course is educational material only. Nothing in it is a guarantee of income, and nothing in it is financial, legal or investment advice.

Every follower count, view count, sponsorship fee and income figure in this book is a target example or a clearly labelled illustration, never a prediction about your account. Reach is controlled by platforms you do not own, and monetization reach is controlled by rules that change without notice. The course teaches the converter, not the lottery.

All prices, rates and ladders shown in this book are illustrative examples for teaching. You are responsible for complying with local law, your tax obligations, the terms of service of any platform you use, and the requirements of any bank, wallet or payment provider you deal with. Rules, fees, limits and country availability change, sometimes quickly.

Where the underlying research could not verify a fact, this book says so and tells you to check it yourself. Those gaps were left as gaps deliberately.

DATES, CURRENCY AND EXAMPLES

All money in this course is US US dollars (USD), written as $25. Where a United States dollar figure appears it states its rate and its date on the same line.

Every business named anywhere in these pages is invented. Each is labelled Example scenario — fictional. No real, recognisable local company is presented as a client, a case study or a testimonial.

Every figure cited is current as of September 2026 unless a different date is printed beside it. Source URLs for those figures appear in the Sources & Further Reading section at the back of the book.

BEFORE YOU RELY ON ANY OF THIS

Payment limits, wallet rules, tax thresholds and platform availability are the parts of this book most likely to go stale. Treat every number as a starting point for your own check, not as a substitute for it. Where this book names a rule, confirm the current version with the institution that made it.

HOW TO WORK THROUGH THIS COURSE

Skim the section dividers first so you can see the whole route. Then work one section at a time and finish the DO tasks before moving to the next. The scripts, templates and checklists are meant to be copied, filled in and sent — not admired.

FRONT MATTER

Before You Start

This course teaches one thing: how an local creator with a phone, a small data bundle and no audience turns content into money that can actually reach a wallet or a bank account where you live.

What this course can help you do

— Choose one of six monetization paths before you start posting, so your content is built for the buyer you want.

— Pick a niche that has people in it who already spend money, and prove it with a list of ten names.

— Rewrite your TikTok, Instagram and Telegram profiles so a stranger understands what you do in three seconds.

— Build a content bank of thirty pieces using five pillars, twenty written-out hooks and six formats ranked by difficulty.

— Publish consistently on a connection that drops to 98 Kb/s between 16:00 and 24:00, and keep working when a platform is blocked.

— Convert a small audience into service clients, digital products, sponsorships, leads, a community, or paid consulting.

— Use Telegram as a home base you can still reach when a feed is not loading.

— Protect your reputation, other people's work, and your own account.

— Finish a Day 1 to Day 30 build with thirty published pieces and one real monetization attempt.

What this course cannot do

It cannot make you money. It cannot promise followers, views, reach, sponsors or sales, and it cannot give you a timeline. It cannot change the fact that your country is not included in the platform ad-revenue programmes that creators in other countries talk about. It cannot tell you what a sponsorship costs in your city, because there is no published local creator rate card this course could verify.

What it can do is remove the guessing. You will know which path you are building for, what to post, what to say, what to charge as a labelled example, how to get paid legally as an individual, and which mistakes cost beginners the most.

What you need

ITEM	WHY YOU NEED IT	HONEST NOTES
An Android phone	Filming, editing, posting, messaging, receiving payment	A phone is enough for the whole course. Everything here is written phone-first
A free video editor	Cutting, captions, resizing, exporting at 720p	CapCut, InShot or VN Editor. All three are live on the Play Store with free tiers, and free tiers change, so verify the current limits before you build a workflow on one

ITEM	WHY YOU NEED IT	HONEST NOTES
A data bundle	Uploading, messaging, answering clients	A 2 GB monthly bundle is around $0.60 on an indicative published guide. Work on Wi-Fi where you can

ITEM	WHY YOU NEED IT	HONEST NOTES
TikTok or Instagram account	Where strangers find you	Instagram reach where you live is about 1.55 m accounts; TikTok is where most local short video attention sits today

ITEM	WHY YOU NEED IT	HONEST NOTES
A Telegram account	Your home base and your contact list	Free, works on a weak connection, and survives when a feed does not
A wallet or bank account	Getting paid by local buyers	a mobile wallet (60.59 m customers), a mobile-money wallet (5.2 m subscribers), a bank wallet, a bank wallet and others are licensed by your regulator. Confirm the current limits in your own app
About one hour a day for 30 days	The build sprint in Section 10	One hour is the honest figure. If you have less, use the five-hour fast path in this front matter and stretch the sprint over ten weeks

Bundle prices are indicative and change often, and Safaricom your country raised mobile data prices by an average of 44% on 23 December 2025 while Ethio telecom kept low-income bundles unchanged. Check your own operator's current offer before you plan a budget. Sources are listed in Sources & Further Reading.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this course you should be able to: name the six monetization paths and say which one you are building for; write a one-line positioning statement and put it on three profiles; produce and publish thirty finished pieces of content on a phone; read the four analytics that matter and ignore the one that does not; open a conversation with a stranger that leads to a paid job, a product sale, or a sponsorship; hold your audience in a channel you control; and explain honestly why follower count is not the same thing as income.

THE MOST IMPORTANT RULE

Do not read this course without publishing something.

Reading about content is not content. Watching a lesson about hooks does not put a hook in front of anybody. The only thing that changes your situation is a finished piece, posted, with a person on the other end who could reply.

So the rule is one line: every study session ends with one piece published or one real message sent. Not planned. Not drafted. Published, or sent.

If you only remember one instruction from this book, remember this one. Thirty published pieces will teach you more about your own audience than three hundred pages of theory, including these pages.

FRONT MATTER

Who This Is For, and Who It Is Not For

This is for you if

- You are 18 to 32, a student, a recent graduate, under-employed, or working a job that does not stretch far enough, and you want a second income you build yourself.
- You already post on TikTok, Instagram or Telegram, even if almost nobody watches.
- You have a phone, a small bundle, and no audience worth mentioning yet.
- You can give about an hour a day for thirty days before you expect anything back.
- You accept that most of your first pieces will be weak, and you will post them anyway.
- You live in your city, or in a regional city, a regional city, a regional city, a regional city, a regional city, a regional city, a regional city, a smaller town, a smaller town or anywhere else with a phone signal.

This is not for you if

- You want ad revenue. your country is not in YouTube's Partner Program, TikTok's Creator Rewards covers roughly fourteen countries with none in Africa, and Meta's in-stream ads reached Kenya, Nigeria and Ghana but not your country. If ad-share is the plan, this course will disappoint you on page one.
- You want to buy followers, buy engagement, or rent somebody else's account. Section 09 and the anti-scam closing explain what that costs you.
- You want passive income. Every path in this course is active work. Money stops when you stop.
- You are looking for a way around local law on payments, tax or virtual assets. This course will not teach one.
- You are unwilling to talk to strangers. Every path here eventually requires a direct message, a phone call or a meeting.
- You want to post about other people's lives, health, money or legal problems without checking your facts. Section 09 explains why that ends badly.

FRONT MATTER

The Honest Fact This Course Is Built On

Read this before anything else, because most of what you have heard about online income assumes something that is not true where you live.

FOLLOWER COUNT DOES NOT AUTOMATICALLY PRODUCE INCOME, AND THE PLATFORM AD-REVENUE ROUTE IS CLOSED TO YOU

In many countries a creator with a large following can join a platform's advertising programme and be paid a share of the ad money their videos generate. That door is shut where you live.

— YouTube: your country is not on the availability list for the YouTube Partner Program. Many creators in countries like yours register accounts in other countries to get around this, which is a compliance risk carried by the creator, not by YouTube.

— TikTok: the Creator Rewards programme is gated by country to roughly fourteen countries, with none in Africa. TikTok Shop is live in sixteen countries, with zero African markets.

— Meta: in-stream ads and Ads on Reels rolled out to Kenya, Nigeria and Ghana in 2024. your country was not included.

If your plan is "get big, then get paid by the platform", you do not have a plan. You have a hope attached to a rule that excludes you. YouTube's average CPM for local traffic has been reported at around USD 1.01, which tells you how little the ad market values this audience even where ads exist.

What does work instead

Money in this market does not flow from the platform to you. It flows from a person or a business to you, because you did something they wanted. Six routes carry almost all of it:

01 Services

You do work for a client: editing, photography, captions, management, design, translation, tutoring. They pay you directly.

02 Digital products

You make something once and sell it many times: a guide, a template pack, a prompt collection, a study resource.

03 Sponsorships

A local or regional business pays for a mention in front of the audience you actually have.

04 Lead generation

You send customers to a business and are paid per enquiry, per booking or per sale.

05 Community

A paid or sponsor-supported Telegram community where members get something worth staying for.

06 Consulting and teaching

One-to-one sessions, small workshops, corporate training. The fastest route for someone who already has real expertise.

None of these six need permission from a platform. All six need an audience that trusts you, which is the part this course actually builds.

FRONT MATTER

What an local Audience Actually Looks Like

Two numbers decide how you should plan, and both of them are smaller and stranger than most people assume.

9.80 m

SOCIAL MEDIA IDENTITIES WHERE YOU LIVE — 7.2% OF THE POPULATION, 13.2% OF ADULTS 18+

21.7%

OF THE COUNTRY IS ONLINE — 29.5 M PEOPLE, AGAINST 107 M OFFLINE

INSTAGRAM ACCOUNTS REACHED, AGAINST 9.80 M ON FACEBOOK

Read those numbers honestly. An local creator is not fishing in an ocean of a hundred million people. You are fishing in a lake of under ten million accounts, and a good part of that lake is in a handful of cities.

That sounds like bad news. It is mostly good news, for one reason: a small, concentrated, reachable audience is far better for selling services, products and leads than a huge, scattered one. If you sell phone photography in a regional city, you do not need a million viewers. You need the few thousand people in a regional city who own a shop and scroll their phone in the evening.

> THE OTHER HALF OF THE HONEST PICTURE
> Smartphone ownership is around 15% of the population, and only about 6% of women against 18% of men. Instagram reach is roughly 1.55 m accounts. Your realistic local audience is urban, young, phone-based, and concentrated on Facebook and TikTok-style short video. Any plan that assumes everybody in the country can see your post is a plan built on a number that does not exist.
>
> Plan for thousands, not millions. Thousands of the right people can pay you. Millions of the wrong ones cannot.

FRONT MATTER

How to Use This Course

Phone-first, not phone-only

Read this on the device you will work on. Every workflow is written for a phone first. Where a step genuinely needs a laptop, it says so and gives you the phone alternative. Where a step is fine either way, a phone is enough.

LAPTOP HELPS marks a step worth borrowing a laptop for. PHONE IS FINE marks everything else, which is most of the course.

Low-data mode

- Read and plan offline. This course is text-first on purpose so it opens on a weak connection.
- Download your editor and any fonts while you are on Wi-Fi or on a bundle you are not saving.
- Export at 720p, not 1080p or 4K. A smaller file uploads faster on a slow connection and looks the same on a phone screen.
- Copy the templates in this book into a plain notes file on your phone. Text costs almost nothing to move.
- Keep a bank of finished pieces saved on your device. Do not re-download your own videos to repost them.
- Upload in the morning when you can. Worst-case freelancer speeds have been reported as low as 98 Kb/s between 16:00 and 24:00.

The structure

SECTIONS	WHAT THEY DO	WHEN TO READ THEM
01	Why followers are not income, and choosing your money path	First, before you post anything

SECTIONS	WHAT THEY DO	WHEN TO READ THEM
02	Niche, positioning, profile	Day one and day two of the build

SECTIONS	WHAT THEY DO	WHEN TO READ THEM
03	Pillars, hooks, formats, batching	Before you film your first piece
04	Publishing on an local connection	Alongside every posting day

SECTIONS	WHAT THEY DO	WHEN TO READ THEM
05 to 07	The six monetization paths in detail	When you have something to sell
08	Telegram as your home base	Week one, and again every month
09	Reputation, copyright, platform rules	Before your first paid post
10	The Day 1 to Day 30 build	Your daily driver for the whole month

Three ways to read it

Straight through

Read a section, do its exercise, then move on. About an hour a day for thirty days, which is the plan in Section 10.

Path-first

Read Section 01, pick your money path, then jump straight to the matching section in 05, 06 or 07. Come back to the rest later.

Five-hour fast path

If you are short on time, use the plan in the next block. Five hours, five sessions, one outcome: thirty pieces started and one channel open.

Free plans change. Verify the current free limits of every tool before you build a workflow on it, including whether a watermark appears, how many exports you get, and which resolutions you can save.

FRONT MATTER

If You Only Have Five Hours

Five sessions of one hour. Do them on five different days if you can, so you sleep between decisions. At the end you will have a chosen path, three fixed profiles, a Telegram channel, ten written hooks and five finished videos.

1. Hour 1 — Choose the money, then the niche
   Read Section 01 and the first half of Section 02. Write down the one path you are building for out of the six. Then write a list of ten real people or businesses you could name who might pay for something related to your niche. If you cannot reach ten, change the niche before you spend another hour on it.

2. Hour 2 — Fix all three profiles
   Use the bio templates in Section 02. Rewrite your TikTok name and bio, your Instagram name and bio, and create your Telegram channel with its description. Put the same one-line positioning statement in all three. Pin one post or message that explains what you do.

1. Hour 3 — Build the content bank on paper

   Read Section 03. Pick three of the five pillars. Copy ten hooks from the list of twenty and rewrite each one in your own words for your niche. Choose two formats you can shoot today without buying anything. Write all ten pieces into one notes file.

1. Hour 4 — Film and edit five pieces in one sitting

   Set your phone camera to 720p, film five pieces back to back in the same spot with the same light, then edit them in one session. Do not post yet. Save all five as finished files on the device.

2. Hour 5 — Open the home base and start publishing

   Read Section 08 and finish the Telegram setup checklist. Put the Telegram link in all three bios. Post piece one, and send the link to five people you actually know with one short personal message. Then publish one piece a day for the next five days, and read Section 04 before you post on a slow connection.

WHAT THE FIVE-HOUR PATH LEAVES OUT

It leaves out the six monetization paths in detail, the media kit, the sponsorship pricing method, the community and consulting playbooks, and the legal and reputation rules in Section 09. That is a real cost. Do the five hours now so you have something live, then come back and read Sections 05 to 09 before you take your first payment or your first sponsor.

01

Why Followers Are Not Income

The difference between reach, attention and revenue; the three things an audience actually gives you; the six monetization paths side by side with what each one demands and what it risks; and the local reality check that should change how you plan.

01 Reach, attention and revenue are three different things

02 The three things an audience actually gives you

03 The six monetization paths, compared honestly

04 The local reality check

05 The rule: choose the money path before you build the audience

Follower count is a scoreboard, not a bank balance. You can have fifty thousand followers and no income, or eight hundred followers and a waiting list. This section explains why, and then makes you choose your money path before you post another thing.

Read the table in 1.3 slowly. It is the spine of the whole book. Everything after this section is one of those six rows, expanded.

1.1 Reach, attention and revenue

EXPLAIN Reach is how many accounts saw something you made. Attention is how many of them stopped, watched, saved or came back. Revenue is money that arrived in your wallet or bank account. They are three separate systems, and a platform can hand you the first without ever giving you the third.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. Two creators in a regional city, both fictional. One posts a dance clip that gets 400,000 views in a week and gains 12,000 followers. Almost none of those viewers live within 200 km, none of them want to buy anything, and the account earns nothing. The other posts a plain video about how to photograph stock for an online shop, gets 4,000 views, gains 90 followers, and 6 of those followers are shop owners who send a direct message asking for a price. The second account earns; the first one has a number.

DO Open your own last ten posts, if you have them. For each, write one word: reach if it only got views, or revenue if it produced a message, a save, a share, a follow from a possible buyer, or a sale. Do not judge yourself. Just label them.

CHECK You can explain to a friend, in two sentences, why 400,000 views can be worth less than 4,000 views. If you cannot, read 1.1 again before continuing.

> THE SENTENCE THAT DECIDES EVERYTHING
> Nobody pays you for being watched. They pay you for changing something for them. A viewer whose evening you improved owes you nothing. A viewer whose problem you solved, whose customer you sent, or whose business you made look better has a reason to pay.

1.2 The three things an audience actually gives you

An audience is not money, but it is three things that can be converted into money. Most beginners build the audience without knowing which of the three they are building, which is why nothing converts.

WHAT YOU GET	WHAT IT REALLY IS	WHAT IT CONVERTS INTO	HOW YOU KNOW YOU HAVE IT
Trust	People believe you know what you are talking about, because you have shown your work repeatedly	Digital products, consulting, paid teaching, paid community	Strangers send you questions before you ask them to buy anything
Distribution	A way to put a message in front of a specific group of people without paying for it	Sponsorships, affiliate and lead arrangements, your own product launches	A business asks what your views look like, or you can point to a post that moved people to act
A reason to talk to you	A legitimate excuse to open a conversation with someone who would otherwise ignore you	Service clients, collaborations, partnerships, corporate training	You can send a message that starts with your work instead of a request

Trust is the slowest of the three and the only one that survives a change of platform. Distribution is the fastest and the most fragile.

The reason to talk to you is the most underrated, because it opens doors before you have either of the others.

1.3 The six monetization paths, compared honestly

This is the table to read twice. Columns four and five matter more than columns one and two, because the risks are what actually stop people.

PATH	WHAT IT REQUIRES	HOW FAST IT CAN PAY	WHAT IT PAYS IN	THE HONEST RISK
01. Service You do work for a client	A skill someone already pays for, a way to show it, and a way to receive money	Usually the fastest of the six. A service can be sold before your audience is large at all	USD by wallet transfer or bank transfer, from a local client	Income stops when you stop working. One demanding client can consume every hour you have
02. Digital product A guide, template pack, prompt collection or study resource	Something worth paying for, a delivery method, and a way to collect payment from local buyers	Medium. Products need trust first, so they usually come after weeks of useful posting	USD by wallet or bank transfer. Telegram Stars is a possible rail for digital goods; read Section 05 before you build on it	Most first products sell to a handful of people. Piracy, refunds and support all take unpaid time
03. Sponsorship A business pays for a mention	A specific audience a business wants, plus proof you can actually move them	Medium to slow at a small size. Local businesses pay small amounts early, and the amounts grow with proof	a transfer, against a simple written agreement and a receipt	You become advertising. A sponsor your audience distrusts costs you more than the fee. More than 80% of federal business licences issued went dormant during 2025, so many small businesses cannot sustain ongoing paid promotion
04. Lead generation You send customers to a business and are paid per lead or per sale	An audience that trusts your recommendation, and a business willing to agree terms in writing	Can start earlier than the others, because it needs trust rather than size	USD per enquiry, per booking or per closed sale. Occasionally goods or services instead of cash	Argument about attribution. If the business does not record leads honestly, you cannot prove what you sent
05. Community A paid or sponsor-supported Telegram community	A reason for members to stay, a moderation habit, and a payment rail	Slow to build, then recurring while you keep delivering every week	USD monthly from members, or sponsor payments to reach the group	Churn. A silent group dies quietly and takes your reputation with it. You are now running a service, not a feed
06. Consulting and teaching One-to-one sessions, workshops, corporate training	Real expertise and the ability to explain it under pressure	Often the fastest route for someone who already has a skill, because the buyer is one decision-maker, not a market	USD per session, per workshop, or per training contract	Your time is the product, so your income has a hard ceiling. Corporate buyers move slowly and may ask for a TIN or a licence before they can pay you

All payment descriptions follow the your central bank or financial regulator's licensed wallet and money-transfer framework. Read Section 05 before you accept money, and confirm current wallet limits in your own app, because your regulator your payment-system rules limits change the daily ceilings.

TARGET EXAMPLE — NOT A PREDICTION

3 service clients × $25 = $75 in one month
```

This is arithmetic, not a forecast. Whether those three clients exist depends on your skill, your niche, how many people you approach, and luck. For scale: federal civil service pay for a degree-holder entry post was raised to $70 a month in September 2025, and a planning proxy for young urban white-collar work in Addis is roughly $35 to 15,000 a month, which is an estimate, not a survey figure. your country has no universal statutory minimum wage for the private sector.

1.4 The local reality check

The numbers in this subsection come from DataReportal's Digital 2026 country report for your country and the GSMA Mobile Gender Gap work reported by Dollars Metrics. They are current as of September 2026.

MEASURE	FIGURE	WHAT IT MEANS FOR YOU
Social media identities	9.80 m — 7.2% of the population, 13.2% of adults 18+	Your total addressable audience is smaller than most people assume. Niche hard, because you cannot win a general audience
Internet users	29.5 m — 21.7%	Roughly four in five people in the country are not online at all. Offline marketing still matters for many local businesses
People offline	107 m — 78.3%	Never build a plan that assumes a mass national audience
Facebook ad reach	9.80 m, 66.8% male	The largest single surface, and heavily male. Check who your buyer is before you assume
Instagram reach	1.55 m	Small, urban, and comparatively higher-income. Good for products and services, thin for volume
Smartphone ownership	15% of the population; 6% of women against 18% of men	Device access, not interest, limits your reach. The gender gap is real and worth designing around
Median fixed download	9.37 Mbps	Home and office Wi-Fi is usable. Plan heavy uploads around it
Average mobile download	26.63 Mbps, August 2025	Mobile is fast on average, but averages hide the evening collapse
Worst-case speeds	As low as 98 Kb/s, worst between 16:00 and 24:00	This single fact shapes Section 04. Upload in the morning

THE GOOD NEWS INSIDE THE BAD NUMBERS

A small audience that is concentrated, urban and reachable is worth more to a service business than a large scattered one. Nine and a half million accounts is not a lot in global terms, but if you sell to café owners in one city, your real market might be two thousand people, and two thousand reachable people is plenty to build a service or a lead-generation arrangement on.

Small is not the problem. Unfocused is the problem.

1.5 The rule: choose the money path before the audience

EXPLAIN The content that builds a service audience is not the content that builds a product audience. Service buyers want to see you do the work and they want to be able to reach you. Product buyers want to see the result you got, and they want to be able to buy without talking to anyone. If you do not choose, you produce content that does neither well, and you end up with a pleasant feed and no income.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. Two fictional creators in a regional city. Creator A decides on services first: she wants three cafés paying her monthly to shoot and edit their posts. Her content shows her shooting, her edits, before-and-after menus, and the words "I have space for one more café this month". Creator B decides on a digital product first: a study guide for a national exam. Her content teaches one small thing per video and ends with "the full guide is in my Telegram channel". Same city, same effort, completely different videos — and both are correct, because each chose first.

DO Write one sentence in your notes, right now, in this format: "I am building for the _____ path, so the buyer I am aiming at is _____, and the one thing my content must prove is _____." Do not write two paths. One.

CHECK You can look at your last five posts, if you have any, and say whether each one moved you closer to that buyer or further away. If more than two moved you further away, that is useful information, not a failure.

My chosen path (one of six) .....

My buyer, described as one person .....

What my content must prove .....

Words I will never use about money .....

On that last line, write the words you are banning from your own mouth: guaranteed, passive, instant, rich, easy money. You will be offered these words constantly by other people. Decide now that they are not yours.

> ONE PATH, THIRTY DAYS
> Beginners lose months by changing paths every week. Pick one path, run the full thirty-day build in Section 10, and only then decide whether to add a second. If your first choice is wrong, thirty days of real evidence will tell you why, and that evidence is worth more than a month of thinking about it.

02

SECTION TWO

Niche, Positioning and Profile

How to choose a niche that has buyers rather than only viewers, five local niches with the people who actually pay in each one, and a complete profile rebuild for TikTok, Instagram and Telegram with copy-ready bio templates.

01 A topic is not a niche: the ten-buyer test

02 Five local niches and who pays in each

03 Profile optimisation for TikTok, Instagram and Telegram

04 The one-line positioning statement

05 Copy-ready bios, and the worksheet

A niche is not a subject you enjoy. A niche is a group of people who share a problem and already spend money trying to solve it. This section finds yours, then fixes the three places where strangers decide whether to follow you.

Do the ten-buyer test before you read the rest. If you cannot pass it, nothing later in this course will work properly, no matter how good your videos are.

2.1 A topic is not a niche: the ten-buyer test

EXPLAIN A topic is a subject: food, football, fashion, faith, phones, farming, fitness. A niche is a topic plus a specific group of people plus a problem those people pay to solve. "Food" is a topic. "Helping small cafés in a regional city sell more lunch to office workers" is a niche, because you can name the buyer.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator posts cooking videos. She has 3,000 followers and no income, because cooks watch for free and nobody in the audience owns a business. She narrows to fasting-season menus for small restaurants. Now her audience includes restaurant owners, and restaurant owners pay for a menu, a photo pack or a month of posts. Same cooking, same phone, different buyer.

DO Write the answer to one question: can you name ten real people or businesses who would pay for something related to this? Real names, real phone numbers, in your contacts or findable on Google Maps. Not "cafés in general". Ten specific ones.

CHECK You have ten names written down and at least four of them are businesses you could physically visit or call this week. If you have fewer than ten, the niche is too narrow to feed you or too vague to find buyers — either widen it slightly or make the buyer explicit.

> THE TEN-BUYER TEST, IN ONE LINE
> Can you write ten names? If yes, you have a business. If no, you have a hobby with a hashtag. Getting to ten names is a two-hour job with Google Maps and a local classifieds site, not a six-month question.

2.2 Five local niches and who pays in each

These five are chosen because the buyer is identifiable and reachable from a phone. For each one, the paying side is listed first, because that is the side that decides whether you earn.

NICHE	WHO PAYS	WHAT THEY BUY	WHY IT WORKS WHERE YOU LIVE	MAIN DIFFICULTY
Food, cafés and home cooking	Cafés, restaurants, juice houses, bakeries, grocery and spice sellers — and your own audience for a recipe guide	Photo and video packs, a month of social posts, menu design, a lead arrangement where you send customers, a paid recipe collection	Food content travels further than any other category, and every neighbourhood has cafés competing for the same lunch crowd. an online business directory's business guide lists 257 restaurants and cafés among its categories, and that is one directory only	Competition is heavy and the visuals have to be genuinely good. Bad food photography is worse than none

NICHE	WHO PAYS	WHAT THEY BUY	WHY IT WORKS WHERE YOU LIVE	MAIN DIFFICULTY
Fashion, thrift and beauty	Clothing shops, second-hand sellers, salons, barbers, cosmetics sellers, tailors	Product photography, short-form try-on videos, a weekly posting service, a simple order-and-delivery flow on Telegram	Buyers already decide on a phone screen. A shop that cannot photograph stock properly loses sales it never sees	Very crowded, and price competition is brutal. Your advantage has to be speed and consistency, not taste alone

NICHE	WHO PAYS	WHAT THEY BUY	WHY IT WORKS WHERE YOU LIVE	MAIN DIFFICULTY
Study, exams and digital skills	Students paying small amounts directly; tutoring centres, private colleges and training institutes paying for enrolment	Study guides, past-paper packs, summary notes, a paid Telegram study group, promotional videos for a tutoring centre	Education inflation ran at 25.3% year on year in August 2026, the fastest non-food item, while a private in-person digital-skills course has been reported at around $125. Students want cheaper ways to learn	Students have very little money. You need volume or a business buyer alongside the student buyer

NICHE	WHO PAYS	WHAT THEY BUY	WHY IT WORKS WHERE YOU LIVE	MAIN DIFFICULTY
Fitness, sport and wellbeing	Gyms, personal trainers, sports shops, physiotherapy clinics, supplement sellers	Transformation series, class schedules, member testimonials, a paid 30-day programme, lead generation for gym sign-ups	Fitness content is repeatable and cheap to film, and gyms compete for New Year and pre-holiday sign-ups	Health claims are a legal and reputational trap. Section 09 covers exactly what you may not say
Local travel, city life and events	Tour operators, guesthouses, hotels, transport providers, event promoters, wedding suppliers	Destination videos, guesthouse walkthroughs, a booking lead arrangement, event coverage, a paid city guide	your country's domestic travel market is real and underexposed online. an online business directory's guide filters businesses across fourteen cities, which tells you how distributed this market is	Seasonal, and travel buyers plan far ahead. Cash flow is uneven

Directory counts are from the online business directory, listed in Sources & Further Reading, and are one snapshot of one directory, not a market study. All buyer descriptions are general categories, not real companies.

NICHES TO THINK TWICE ABOUT

Avoid niches where your content has to make a claim you cannot support. Medical advice, investment returns, legal outcomes and "how to get rich" content all attract trouble, and where you live the virtual-asset space is prohibited unless expressly authorised. If your niche requires you to promise a health, money or legal result, change the angle so you are teaching a process, not an outcome.

2.3 Profile optimisation: three platforms, three jobs

Your profile has one job: let a stranger decide in three seconds whether to follow or leave. On TikTok and Instagram that decision happens in the grid and the bio. On Telegram it happens in the channel description and the pinned message.

ELEMENT	TIKTOK	INSTAGRAM	TELEGRAM
Name field	Put the searchable words here, not a nickname: "Café Video a regional city" beats "Selly"	Same rule. The name field is searchable, the handle is not	Channel name plus what it gives: "a regional city Café Tips"

ELEMENT	TIKTOK	INSTAGRAM	TELEGRAM
Handle	Short, spellable, no numbers if you can avoid them	Match your TikTok handle exactly	Match both, so people can find you by typing

ELEMENT	TIKTOK	INSTAGRAM	TELEGRAM
Bio	One line: who you help, what you give them, what to do next	Same, plus one proof point if you have one	Description: what members get and how often
Link	One link. Send it to Telegram, not to a page with five options	One link, same destination	Not needed. Telegram is the destination

ELEMENT	TIKTOK	INSTAGRAM	TELEGRAM
Pinned content	Pin the one video that explains what you do and who for	Pin three posts: what you do, proof, and how to reach you	Pin a welcome message with the rules and the next step
Highlights	Not available. Use pinned videos instead	Three to five highlights: Work, Prices, Results, About	Use pinned messages as your highlights
First nine grid	Not applicable. Your first three videos are the shop window	The nine most recent posts must look like they belong to the same account	Not applicable. The first screen of messages is the shop window

The first nine grid, explained

On Instagram, a visitor sees nine posts at once. If those nine are a random mix, the visitor cannot tell what you do, and they leave. Arrange them deliberately: three that teach, three that show your work, three that show who you are. You do not need a designer. You need consistency in colour, framing and subject so the grid reads as one account.

A practical method: film nine pieces in two sessions using the same background and the same light. Post them in a planned order over two weeks. That is your grid. Only then start posting freely.

The link decision

Every platform should point to the same place, and that place should be your Telegram channel, for the reason in Section 08: it is the only one of the three where you hold the list. A link-in-bio page with five buttons looks professional and converts badly on a phone with a slow connection. One link, one destination.

2.4 The one-line positioning statement

EXPLAIN A positioning statement is one sentence that says who you help, with what, and what makes you the one to ask. It goes in all three bios, and it is the first line you say in a video. It is not a slogan and it does not need to be clever.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. Weak: "Content creator | Addis | DM for collab". Strong: "I make short videos that bring lunch customers to small cafés in a regional city." The strong version tells a café owner in one line whether this is for them. The weak version tells nobody anything.

DO Write it in this exact shape: "I help [specific group] in [place or online] get [specific result] using [your method or tool]." Then cut it until it fits in one breath.

CHECK Read it to someone who does not use social media much. If they can repeat the group and the result back to you, it works. If they ask "so what do you actually do?", cut it and start again.

I help .....

in .....

get .....

using .....

Ten buyers I can name .....

Use the tall box for the ten names. Write them by hand. A list on paper is harder to abandon than a list in your head.

2.5 Copy-ready bios

COPY-READY: TIKTOK BIO (KEEP IT INSIDE THE CHARACTER LIMIT)

I help [cafés in a regional city] get [more lunch customers] with [short videos shot on a phone].

New video every [weekday].

Work with me: [Telegram link]

Do not use a joke, a quote, or a list of emoji in the bio. A buyer skimming three seconds needs the group and the result, nothing else.

COPY-READY: INSTAGRAM BIO AND NAME FIELD

Name field: [Café Video] [a regional city]

Bio line 1: Short videos that bring [lunch customers] to [small cafés].

Bio line 2: Shot and edited on a phone. [Number] cafés helped so far. (Only write this if it is true.)

Bio line 3: Prices and examples in Telegram → [link]

NEVER WRITE A NUMBER THAT IS NOT TRUE

The line "cafés helped so far" must be a real count. If it is zero, write "Taking my first three cafés this month" instead. Nobody is offended by a beginner. Everybody is offended by a fake claim, and in a small business community in one city, that claim will be checked.

COPY-READY: TELEGRAM CHANNEL DESCRIPTION

[Channel name] — practical short-video tips for [small café owners in a regional city].

What you get here:

• One usable tip every [Monday and Thursday]

• Examples of posts that worked, with what they cost

• My prices for [photo packs, video packs and a monthly service]

No spam. No forwarded chain messages. Ask questions any time.

COPY-READY: PINNED WELCOME MESSAGE FOR THE TELEGRAM CHANNEL

Welcome. This channel is for [café and restaurant owners in a regional city] who want better photos and videos without hiring an agency.

What I post: one short tip, twice a week.

What I sell: [a 10-photo pack], [a 4-video pack], and [a monthly posting service]. Prices are in the message below this one.

How to ask: reply to this message with your question, or send me a direct message.

SECTION 02 OUTPUT

Before you move on you should have: ten named buyers, one chosen niche with the paying side written down, one positioning sentence, three updated profiles pointing to one Telegram link, and one pinned piece of content on each platform that explains what you do. That is a full day of work if you do it properly.

Content Pillars, Hooks and Formats

Five pillars that work for creators in countries like yours, twenty hooks written out in full, the three-second rule, the four-part structure of a short video, six formats ranked by production difficulty, the faceless option and its limits, a batching method, and a 30-day content calendar with a blank template.

01 The five content pillars

02 The three-second rule and the four-part structure

03 Twenty hooks, written out in full

04 Six formats ranked by production difficulty

05 The faceless option, and what it cannot do

06 Batching, and the 30-day content calendar

Ideas are not the bottleneck. Decide the shape of your content once, then produce it repeatedly without thinking. That is what pillars, hooks and formats are for.

By the end of this section you will have ten hooks rewritten in your own words and a thirty-day calendar you can shoot from.

3.1 The five content pillars

A pillar is a repeating category of content. When you are tired or busy, a pillar tells you what to make without inventing anything. Five pillars cover almost everything a small local creator needs.

EXPLAIN Teach gives a usable instruction. Show demonstrates your work or your process. Story tells what happened to you. Opinion takes a clear position on something your niche argues about. Proof displays a result, a before-and-after, or a customer outcome. Rotate through all five across a month; the mix is what keeps an audience from getting bored and what gives you five different ways to sell.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city who wants café clients. Teach: "Three phone settings that fix dark café photos." Show: filming a coffee pour with a phone on a stack of books. Story: "I asked five cafés for feedback and four said the same thing." Opinion: "Paying a photographer once beats posting blurry photos for a year." Proof: the same plate of food, shot badly and shot well, side by side. Five pillars, one niche, five pieces a week without repeating yourself.

DO Write one idea under each of the five pillars for your niche. Five ideas, five minutes. That is your first week of content, and it took less time than reading this paragraph.

CHECK For each of the five, you can say out loud who it is for and what they get. If an idea does not have a specific person on the other end, delete it and write another.

> THE PILLAR RATIO THAT WORKS FOR A SMALL ACCOUNT
> Two teach, one show, one opinion or story, one proof across every five pieces. Teach earns you followers. Show and proof earn you buyers. Story and opinion earn you trust. A feed that is all teach gains followers who never buy. A feed that is all proof bores people before they trust you enough to care.

3.2 The three-second rule and the four-part structure

1. Hook — seconds 0 to 3

   The first line, spoken or on screen, must make a specific person feel that this is about them. No greeting, no channel introduction, no music-only opening. If your first three seconds could belong to any account, you have already lost most of the audience.

2. Context — seconds 3 to 8

   One sentence that says why this matters now, or what the problem costs. Short. Do not explain your credentials here.

1. Value — the middle

   The actual thing: the three settings, the phrase to use, the mistake and the fix. One idea per video. If you have two ideas, you have two videos, and now you have content for tomorrow.

1. Loop or call to action — the last three seconds
   Either send them back to the start with a line that re-frames the opening, or give one clear next step: follow, save, or message a single word. Never ask for three things. Ask for one.

> THE MOST COMMON LOCAL BEGINNER MISTAKE
>
> The intro. "Selam everyone, welcome back to my channel, today I want to talk about..." By the time the topic arrives, most viewers have scrolled. Start at the value and work backwards. If your video is about menu prices, the first words are about menu prices.

3.3 Twenty hooks, written out in full

These are complete first lines, not templates. Read them, then rewrite at least ten for your own niche in your own words. A hook you copied word for word will sound borrowed, and viewers notice.

1. If you sell clothes in Addis and your last post was three weeks ago, this is why nobody is buying.
2. Three things I would fix on a café menu in ten minutes, starting with the one you cannot see.
3. I made this whole video on a phone with a 2 GB bundle. Here is exactly what it cost me.
4. Stop putting your prices in the caption. Put them on the picture. Here is why.
5. Nobody is going to tell you this about your Instagram page, so I will.
6. I asked ten shop owners what they pay for posts. The answers surprised me.
7. Read this before you pay anybody to grow your TikTok.
8. Day one of posting every day for thirty days with almost no followers.
9. The three-second mistake almost every small business makes in a video.
10. If your business is on Google Maps with no photos, you are losing customers. Fix it in four minutes.
11. How I answer a customer who asks for a discount, word for word.
12. This is the exact message I send to a business I want to work with.
13. Five the local language captions that work better than English ones for local buyers.
14. This video took nine minutes to make. Here is the whole process, start to finish.
15. What I learned from thirty days of posting with almost no followers.
16. Your product photo is the problem. Same item, two photos, look at the difference.
17. Nobody talks about this part of working online where you live, so I will.
18. The cheapest way to eat well in this city, tested over one week.
19. If you are a student and you want to earn before graduation, start with this one skill.
20. I charged my first client this much. Here is how I worked out the number.

Rewrite these for your niche. The structure that makes them work is: a specific person, a problem they recognise, and a promise that the next few seconds are worth their time. Never promise a result you cannot show.

3.4 Six formats, ranked by production difficulty

Difficulty here means how much skill, setup and editing the format demands from a beginner on a phone. It does not include legal risk, which is a separate column because reaction content is technically simple and legally risky.

#	FORMAT	WHAT IT NEEDS	TYPICAL USE	HONEST DIFFICULTY	RIGHTS RISK
1	Text on screen	A notes app, a quiet background, one screen of text	Opinions, lists, corrections, announcements	Lowest. Filmable in two minutes with no face and no voice	None if the text and background are yours
2	Talking head	Window light, phone at eye level, a quiet room, one sentence you can say without reading	Teach, story, opinion, direct offers	Low to medium. The hard part is delivery, not gear	None
3	Voiceover with your own footage or stock	Clips, a quiet place to record, an editor that can layer audio	Explainers, city guides, process videos	Medium. Layering voice and picture takes practice	Medium. Stock libraries have licences; read the terms, and never assume a clip is free to use commercially
4	Faceless product or process	The product or task, two hands, steady light, a tripod made from books	Product demos, cooking, repair, packing orders, results	Medium. Needs several takes to get clean hands and steady framing	Low if the product and location are yours to film
5	Screen recording	A phone with a built-in screen recorder, something worth showing on a screen	App walkthroughs, editing tips, wallet and payment demos, study tools	Medium to high. Audio and clarity are hard to get right	Low, but never show another person's account, messages or personal data
6	Reaction	Someone else's clip, your commentary, careful editing	Commentary on trends, news, other people's adverts	Highest for a beginner. Timing, framing and pacing all have to be right	Highest of the six. Using another creator's footage without permission exposes you to takedowns and disputes, and platform rules on unoriginal content are strict

Formats 1 to 4 are where almost all beginner income is built. Format 6 is included because you asked what exists, not because you should start there.

3.5 The faceless option, explained properly

Many creators in countries like yours do not want to show their face, for reasons that are entirely reasonable: privacy, family expectations, a day job, or simply not wanting to be recognised in the street. Faceless content works, and it has a hard limit that nobody mentions.

What faceless content can do well

— Teach a skill through hands, screens and text: editing, cooking, repair, study methods, product demos

— Show a result without a personality: before-and-after, a finished plate, a printed menu, a packed order

— Build a following for a digital product or a lead arrangement, where nobody needs to know who you are in order to buy

— Protect your privacy while you test whether a niche works at all

What faceless content struggles with — Selling consulting and teaching, where the buyer is paying for a person they trust

— Winning service clients who want to know who is turning up at their shop

— Building the kind of trust that makes somebody send money to a stranger on Telegram

— Standing out, because a voice and a face are the cheapest way to be memorable

THE HONEST RULE ABOUT FACELESS WORK

Faceless is a format, not a hiding place. You can post without showing your face. You cannot sell a service, run a sponsorship or close a consulting client while remaining anonymous, because all three require a person on the other end to know who they are dealing with. Decide early: if your chosen path is consulting or services, plan to appear at least in voice, and probably on camera, by the time you ask for money.

3.6 Batching: how to make five pieces in one session

EXPLAIN Batching means doing the same kind of work for several pieces at once: write five hooks in one sitting, film five videos in one sitting, edit five videos in one sitting. Switching tasks costs more time than the tasks themselves, especially on a phone.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city films on Sunday morning by a window. She writes five hooks on Saturday night in a notes file. On Sunday she films all five back to back in forty minutes without moving the phone or the light, then edits all five on Monday evening. Five pieces, two short sessions, one saved bundle because she was not switching apps all week.

DO Set a repeating two-hour block in your week. Session one: write ten hooks. Session two: film five pieces. Session three: edit and caption five pieces. Save all finished files to one folder on the device before you post any of them.

CHECK You have five finished files saved and ready, so a day when the internet dies does not break your streak. A content bank on your own device is the single most useful thing you can own as a creator where you live.

3.7 A 30-day content calendar for a fictional creator

Example scenario — fictional. Selam, 23, works part time in a phone shop in a regional city and wants short-video and photo service clients plus a small paid editing guide. Her pillars rotate, her formats stay inside what she can shoot on a phone, and every piece has one destination.

Fifteen rows here; add a second table for days 16 to 30 using the same six headers. The headers are the important part: they force you to name the pillar, the format, the hook and the destination before you pick up the phone. A calendar with those six columns filled in is a month of content. A calendar with only topics is a wish list.

SECTION 03 OUTPUT

Before you move on you should have: one idea written under each of the five pillars, ten hooks rewritten in your own words, two formats chosen that you can shoot without buying anything, one recurring two-hour batching block in your week, and a 30-day calendar with all six columns filled in.

SECTION FOUR

Publishing Consistently on an local Connection

Mobile-first shooting and editing at 720p, compressing before upload, posting around the evening speed collapse, what to do when the internet dies, what to do when a platform is blocked, and a posting cadence a student or employee can actually keep.

01 Shooting and editing at 720p, on a phone

02 Compressing before you upload

03 Posting around the 16:00 to 24:00 speed collapse

04 When the internet is down: the offline kit

05 When a platform is blocked: the documented history and the lesson

06 A posting cadence you can actually sustain

Most advice about consistency was written for someone with fibre broadband and unlimited data. This section is written for someone with a phone, a bundle measured in gigabytes, and an evening connection that can fall to 98 Kb/s.

The goal is not to post every day forever. The goal is to never miss a week because of something you could have prepared for.

4.1 Shooting and editing at 720p, on a phone

EXPLAIN 720p is a video resolution of 1280 by 720 pixels. Almost every phone screen is close to that, so a 720p video looks the same to your viewer as a larger file that takes four times as long to upload. On a metered local connection, the smaller file is the better file.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city shoots a thirty-second clip at the highest setting her phone offers. The file is around 180 MB. On an evening connection it fails to upload twice and eats most of her bundle. The same clip exported at 720p is a fraction of that size, uploads in the morning, and looks identical on a phone. Nothing was lost except the upload failure.

DO Open your phone camera settings and set video resolution to 720p, 30 frames per second. Set your editor to export at 720p. Do this once, today, and never think about it again. LAPTOP HELPS only if you are editing long pieces; for short vertical video, a phone is better because you avoid a second transfer.

CHECK Film ten seconds, export, and check the file size on your phone. If a thirty-second finished piece is still huge, your export setting did not take. Re-export and check again.

The ten habits of a phone-first shoot

— Vertical, always, for short-form. Horizontal is for long-form and screen recordings.

— Window light on your face. Never stand with a bright window behind you.

— Phone at eye level. A stack of books is a tripod. Nobody sees the books.

— Lock focus and exposure by tapping and holding on your subject before you record.

— Get close for sound. Phone microphones are poor at distance, and local streets are loud.

— Record five seconds before and after what you need. Extra footage is free; a reshoot is not.

— Film in one location and one light for a whole batch. Consistency looks like quality.

— Turn off notifications before recording, so nothing pops up mid-take.

— Airplane mode plus saved audio if you are somewhere with a weak signal and the app keeps stalling.

— Check the take with headphones once. Bad audio is the most common reason a good video is ignored.

4.2 Compress before you upload

The most expensive mistake a beginner makes is uploading straight from the camera roll. Compression is a step, not an option.

1. Export from your editor, not from your gallery
   CapCut, InShot and VN Editor all let you choose the export resolution and quality. Choose 720p. All three are live on the Play Store with free tiers that change, so verify the current limits, including whether a watermark appears on export.

1. Check the file size before you post
   Open your file manager and look at the size in megabytes. If it is far larger than similar videos you have posted, export again at a lower quality setting. On a slow connection, size is the whole fight.
1. Post from the device, not from a cloud folder
   Uploading a file you have to download first doubles your data use. Keep finished pieces saved on the phone and post them from there.
1. Never re-download your own video to repost it
   Save the original finished file. Re-downloading a lower-quality copy costs data and looks worse the second time.
2. Move files to a computer or SD card when the phone fills up
   A full phone stops recording mid-take. Keep at least a few gigabytes free. LAPTOP HELPS for this one job only.

WHAT DATA ACTUALLY COSTS YOU

A 2 GB monthly bundle is around $0.60 on an indicative published guide, and a 30 GB bundle around $5. Heavy freelancer usage has been reported at up to $19 a month. Safaricom your country raised mobile data prices by an average of 44% on 23 December 2025, while Ethio telecom held low-income bundles unchanged and increased its a mobile wallet SuperApp bundle discount from 10% to 20% on 29 December 2025. Prices move. Check your operator's current offer. Treat data as a production cost, and do your uploading on the cheapest connection you can reach.

4.3 Posting around the evening collapse

Average mobile download speeds where you live have been recorded at around 26.63 Mbps, and median fixed broadband at 9.37 Mbps. Those averages hide the number that matters most to a creator: worst-case speeds reported as low as 98 Kb/s, with the worst window between 16:00 and 24:00.

TIME OF DAY	WHAT THE CONNECTION IS USUALLY LIKE	WHAT TO DO WITH IT
Early morning, roughly 06:00 to 10:00	Usually the best window of the day	Upload finished pieces. Publish. Do your heavier downloads
Midday, roughly 10:00 to 16:00	Workable, and often quiet	Film, edit, answer messages, send client replies with files
Evening, roughly 16:00 to 24:00	The worst window. Speeds can fall to around 98 Kb/s	Do offline work: write hooks, plan captions, edit without uploading, talk to people by phone call
Late night, after 24:00	Can improve as traffic drops, but you need to sleep	Not a plan. Do not build a habit around staying up to upload

Speed figures are from Addis Fortune's connectivity reporting, listed in Sources & Further Reading. Speeds vary by operator, city and building. Test your own connection at 08:00 and at 20:00 on the same day and write both numbers down.

POST IN THE MORNING, FOR TWO SEPARATE REASONS

Technical: the upload is more likely to finish without failing and eating your bundle. Audience: many local viewers scroll during commutes, breaks and the early part of the evening. A video uploaded at 08:00 is sitting there, ready, when the evening scroll begins. You do not need to be awake when they watch.

Some platforms offer scheduling inside the app. Availability and eligibility change, and some features arrive in a country later than others. Verify that scheduling works in your own account before you depend on it, and always keep the finished file on your phone so you can post manually if the scheduled post does not appear.

4.4 When the internet is down: the offline kit

Outages happen. Preparation is the difference between a missed week and a bad hour. Build this kit before you need it.

The offline kit

- [ ] Five finished pieces saved on the device, ready to post the moment the connection returns
- [ ] Ten written hooks in a notes file
- [ ] Three text-only posts drafted and ready, because text costs almost nothing to send
- [ ] A phone contact list of your ten best audience members, saved in your phone, not only in an app
- [ ] Your price list and your service description saved offline so you can quote without loading anything
- [ ] A second wallet or bank detail so a client can still pay you if one rail is down

What to do during an outage

- Switch to offline tasks: film, edit, write, plan, call people on the phone
- Call, do not message. A voice call on a weak network often works when data does not
- Keep the promises you already made. Message clients the moment you are back, before you post anything
- Do not delete anything or change your profile while you cannot see the result
- Note the date and how long it lasted. If it happens often, it is a business risk you should plan around

4.5 When a platform is blocked

This is not a hypothetical risk where you live. It is documented, and it has happened repeatedly within the last few years.

PERIOD	WHAT WAS REPORTED
9 February to July 2023	A nationwide block of Facebook, Telegram, TikTok and YouTube, lasting roughly five months. The Internet Society estimated the cost at around USD 42 million. VPN demand peaked 3,651% above average during the block, according to Top10VPN
July 2023 to 15 July 2024	A shutdown across the Amhara Region
Through 2024	Localised shutdowns in parts of Oromia

PERIOD	WHAT WAS REPORTED
June 2025	The internet was reportedly slowed and YouTube restricted in several cities

PERIOD	WHAT WAS REPORTED
Freedom on the Net 2025	Freedom House scored your country 30 out of 100, rated "Not Free", with Obstacles to Access at 7 out of 25

Source: Freedom House, Freedom on the Net 2025, as archived and listed in Sources & Further Reading. This is a record of what was reported, not a prediction.

THIS COURSE WILL NOT TELL YOU TO USE A VPN TO GET AROUND A SHUTDOWN

You will find people online selling VPN advice and "working" configurations during a block. Some of it is a scam, all of it carries personal risk, and a tool that claims to defeat a national block is exactly the kind of tool that asks for permissions you should not give a stranger. This course teaches you to survive a block, not to defeat one. Do not build a business that assumes a specific platform is always reachable.

The practical lesson: three rules that survive a shutdown

01 Never depend on one platform

If everything you have built lives on one feed, one block can take all of it at once. In February 2023 four platforms went dark together, which is exactly the scenario a single-platform creator cannot survive.

02 Keep your own contact list

Phone numbers, saved on your device and written in a notebook. A follower list you cannot export is not a list you own. Ten phone numbers you can call are worth more than ten thousand followers you cannot reach.

03 Keep the relationship somewhere reachable

A channel you can reach by phone, and a habit of talking to people directly. If your audience knows your voice and your number, a blocked feed costs you reach, not the relationship. Section 08 builds this.

4.6 A posting cadence you can actually sustain

The 30-day plan in Section 10 is a sprint. It is not the pace you keep forever, and pretending otherwise is how people quit in month two.

CADENCE	WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE	WHO IT SUITS	HONEST COST
Build sprint	One piece a day for 30 days	The Section 10 month. Treat it as a one-month project with a clear end	About an hour a day. Do not plan to keep this up while studying for exams
Sustainable base	Three short videos a week plus two Telegram posts, with one batching session	A student or employee with a full week	About three hours a week, most of it in one sitting
Minimum viable week	One piece a week, every week, with no gaps	A bad month: exams, illness, family, a busy job	Thirty minutes. This is your floor, not your target
Client delivery week	Client work first, your own content second	Once you have paying clients	Your own account slows down. That is normal and it is the point

THE RULE OF THE FLOOR

One piece a week, forever, beats five pieces a week for three weeks and then nothing. An audience forgives a slow week. It does not forgive silence, because silence is indistinguishable from quitting. Write your floor on a piece of paper and stick it where you film: "One piece a week. No zero weeks."

My build sprint dates .....

My batching block (day and time) .....

My sustainable weekly cadence .....

My floor, which I will not go below .....

SECTION 04 OUTPUT

Camera set to 720p, editor set to export at 720p, the offline kit built, ten contacts saved in your phone, your upload window tested at both 08:00 and 20:00, and a written cadence with a floor you will not drop below.

SECTION FIVE

Paths One and Two: Service and Digital Product

How a small account converts into paying service clients, the inbound message script, pricing a service sold to your own followers, then the digital-product path from validation to launch, and exactly how delivery and payment work for an local seller with no business licence.

01 The four questions that settle it in twenty minutes

02 Local clients versus international clients

03 The legitimate routes, in order

04 What never to do

05 Tax and registration, honestly

Section 01 made you choose one path. This section builds two of the six in full, and they are the two most creators in countries like yours should start with, because both can be run from a phone with no licence.

The single most important idea here: the content that sells a service is proof, not entertainment. Everything else in this section follows from that.

Turning an Audience Into Money That Reaches You

This is the chapter that decides whether the rest of the book turns into money. It is also the chapter most online advice gets wrong, because most online advice assumes you live in a country with a full set of payment rails. If you do, the short version is at the end of this section. If you do not, the rest of this section is for you.

> THE ONE RULE THAT PREVENTS ALMOST EVERY PROBLEM
>
> Agree the payment route with the client before you agree the price. Not after the work is done, not in the invoice, not when they ask for your bank details. Before.
>
> A client who cannot pay you the way you need is not a client. They are a conversation. Finding that out on delivery day is the most expensive lesson in this book, and it is entirely avoidable with one question asked early.

How money actually crosses a border

When a client in another country pays you, the money does not travel directly. It moves through a chain, and every link in that chain is a place where it can stop. Knowing the chain tells you which question to ask.

1. The client pays something
   A card, a PayPal balance, a bank transfer, a mobile wallet, a local payment method. What they can use depends on their country, not yours.

2. A processor authorises it
   Stripe, PayPal, Adyen, a regional gateway. This is where most cross-border problems originate, because processors operate country by country.

3. A platform holds it
   If you sell through a marketplace or course platform, they hold the money and pay you later, on their schedule, at their minimum.

4. It is paid out to you
   A bank deposit in your local currency, a PayPal transfer, or a wallet credit. This is the link that fails most often, and it is the one nobody checks before they start.

EXPLAIN Buyer-side and seller-side are independent. What your client can use to pay has nothing to do with what you can receive. A platform can be perfectly good for your buyers and completely useless for paying you.

SHOW Example — fictional. A writer in Nairobi sells a $25 template pack. Buyers pay by card without difficulty. The platform's payout page then shows one option: PayPal. The writer's PayPal account can send but cannot receive. Fourteen sales, $350, stuck behind a payout route that was never tested.

DO Before you build anything, open the payout settings of every platform you are considering and write down, in one sentence, exactly how money would reach your bank account.

CHECK Can you name the rail, the currency, the minimum payout and the delay? If any of those four is a guess, you have not finished checking.

The four questions that settle it in twenty minutes

QUESTION	WHERE TO LOOK	WHAT A USABLE ANSWER LOOKS LIKE
1. Does this platform pay out to my country?	The platform's own payout-settings page or help article — never a blog post, never a YouTube video	Your country named on the platform's own list, with the payout currency
2. Through which rail?	The same page	A named method: local bank deposit, PayPal, Payoneer, wallet. "Contact support" is not an answer
3. What is the minimum and the delay?	The payout help article	A number and a schedule, so you can plan cash flow
4. What does it cost in total?	The pricing page and the fees help article — they often disagree	Platform fee plus processing fee, added together, expressed as a percentage of a typical sale

TWO RULES THAT WILL SAVE YOU MONEY

Read the payout page, not the signup page. Almost every platform lets you sign up from almost anywhere. That tells you nothing. The gate is payout.

Check whether two platforms share a rail. If two services both pay through the same underlying processor, they are not backups of each other. When that one rail has a problem, both stop at once. Verify the underlying rail, not just the brand on the front.

Local clients versus international clients

These are two different problems and they need two different answers. Do not let one delay the other.

	LOCAL CLIENTS	INTERNATIONAL CLIENTS
What works	Bank transfer, mobile wallet, cash, a local card gateway. Almost always available to an individual with no registered business.	A licensed remittance corridor, a platform that pays out to your country, or an employer's own payroll route.
Speed	Same day, often same hour	Days to weeks, depending on the platform's payout schedule
What can block it	Nothing much, if you have an account in your own name	Country eligibility, missing documents, a rail that does not reach you
Best first move	Start here. Local clients pay for your proof.	Test the payout route with a small real payment before you promise anything

THE TEST PAYMENT

Before you quote a single international client, run one small real transaction end to end: sell something cheap — a $5 template, a $10 review, a single small job — and take it all the way to money in your account.

This costs you one afternoon and one small fee. It converts every assumption in this chapter into a fact, and it is the single most useful hour in this entire book.

What to say to a client about payment

Clients are not suspicious of payment questions. They are suspicious of vague ones. Say the route plainly, in the first conversation, in writing.

COPY-READY: THE PAYMENT-ROUTING MESSAGE

Before we start, one practical thing so neither of us has a surprise at the end.

I am paid by [route: bank transfer / a named platform / a licensed transfer service]. The money arrives in [currency], and I can start work as soon as the first payment shows on my side.

If you would rather use a different method, tell me now and I will check whether it works — I would rather spend five minutes on this today than a week on it later.

For [amount] the split is [50] % to start and [50] % on delivery.

COPY-READY: WHEN A PAYMENT IS LATE

Hello [name] — checking in on the [amount] for [work], which I sent on [date]. It has not shown on my side yet.

Could you confirm the date it was sent and the reference number? If it has not gone out yet, no problem — just let me know when it will, and I will plan around that.

Pricing when the route costs money

Cross-border routes cost the sender or the receiver money. Decide who absorbs it before you quote, and put it in the price rather than discovering it later.

WORKED EXAMPLE — TARGET ARITHMETIC, NOT A FORECAST

Your price for the work: $100
Transfer or platform cost, if you absorb it: $5–$15
What actually reaches you: $85–$95
```

Two ways to handle it: quote a price that already includes the cost, or state plainly that transfer fees are the sender's. What you must not do is quote $100 and then argue about $12 after delivery.

NEVER DO THESE THINGS, WHATEVER ANYONE TELLS YOU

— Never enter a false country, name or address on a payment platform. It breaches the provider's terms, it usually fails identity verification anyway, and the consequence is a frozen balance and a closed account — with your customers refunded and your earnings gone.

— Never use a relative's or friend's account abroad to receive money that is yours. It is the same misrepresentation with extra steps, and it puts their account at risk too.

— Never use a VPN to open a financial account in a country you do not live in.

— Never buy or rent a verified account. The seller keeps access to it.

— Never accept payment in a form your country restricts. Several countries prohibit or restrict virtual-asset transactions; check your own before you accept anything unusual.

The published terms are unambiguous about this. Most platforms require you not to "create an account using a false identity or information, or on behalf of someone other than yourself", and prohibit misrepresenting your "identity, location or credentials". The stated remedy is suspension or termination, and where an underlying processor makes the final call it is often not appealable.

The legitimate routes, in the order worth trying

#	ROUTE	WHO IT SUITS	WHAT TO VERIFY FIRST
1	A platform that publishes your country on its own payout list, paying into a local bank account in local currency	Anyone selling digital products or courses	That the payout page offers bank deposit, not "PayPal only", for your country
2	A licensed money-transfer service (Western Union, MoneyGram, Remitly, WorldRemit and similar) for a one-off client payment	Freelancers and service sellers with a single client	That the receiving country and currency appear on the provider's own corridor list
3	An employer's own payroll or contractor route	Remote employees and long-term contractors	That the employer has paid a contractor in your country before — ask them directly
4	Registering as an exporter of services and receiving into a foreign-currency account	Anyone earning regularly from abroad	Your own country's rules. In several countries this unlocks full retention of foreign-currency earnings and an international card — ask a local accountant, do not guess
5	Trading through a properly registered company in the country where the payout account sits	Established sellers doing meaningful volume	Real incorporation, a real bank account there, real accounting, and any home-country approval required. Legitimate, but slow and expensive — not a shortcut

IF YOU ALREADY HAVE FULL PAYMENT RAILS

Then most of this chapter is not your constraint, and your fastest route is whatever your clients already use: Stripe, PayPal, a card gateway. Skim the four verification questions above anyway — the platform fee difference between two similar services is often several percentage points, and on a hundred sales a year that is real money.

Tax and registration, stated honestly

THIS IS NOT TAX ADVICE, AND THE RULES ARE LOCAL

Almost every country requires you to declare income you earn, and most require some form of tax registration once you are trading. What that means in practice — a tax number, a business registration, a turnover-tax threshold, a VAT threshold — differs enormously from country to country, and the thresholds change.

What to do: find your national tax authority's own website, look for the page on registering as a sole trader or self-employed person, and read the current threshold. If your earnings are small, you may be below every threshold. If they are not, register. A local accountant charges very little for one hour of advice, and that hour is worth more than any general guidance in a book written for the whole world.

Keep a simple record from your first sale: date, client, amount, currency, what it was for, and the fee deducted. That one sheet makes tax time trivial and makes you look professional if anyone ever asks.

IF YOU SELL THROUGH A MARKETPLACE, READ THIS

Large platforms are often the merchant of record, meaning they handle sales tax and VAT for the buyer and remit it themselves. That does not remove your obligation to declare the income you receive. It changes what you have to collect, not whether you have to report.

Some platforms also require a tax form before they will pay you at all — a W-9 if you are in the United States, a W-8 series form if you are not, or a local equivalent. If a form is required and not submitted, payouts are usually paused. Complete it early rather than after your first sale.

SECTION SIX

Paths Three and Four: Sponsorships and Lead Generation

How local sponsorships actually work, what a media kit contains with a copy-ready one-page version, how to price from real reach rather than follower count, how to approach a business with a proposal, then lead generation with a written per-lead agreement and honest tracking.

01 How local sponsorships actually work

02 The one-page media kit, and a copy-ready template

03 Pricing a sponsorship from reach, not follower count

04 A proposal, not a request: the approach

05 What to deliver, and how to prove it

06 Lead generation: the path that suits a small local audience

07 Agreeing a per-lead or per-sale deal in writing

Sponsorship is not a big-brand game where you live. It is a small-business game: a phone shop, a gym, a tour operator, a restaurant, a clinic. And lead generation may be the most underrated path in this entire course, because it rewards trust rather than size.

Both paths need the same thing to work: a written agreement, and honest numbers.

6.1 How local sponsorships actually work

EXPLAIN A sponsorship is a business paying you to put their name in front of your audience. Forget international brand deals. What exists in this market is a local or regional business with a small marketing budget and a specific audience it wants to reach, paying a modest amount because the alternative, paid advertising, is harder for them to measure or afford.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city who makes videos about traditional food is approached by a fictional spice shop. The shop does not want a "campaign". It wants twenty people to walk in and ask for a specific mixed spice. The creator agrees three posts plus a pinned Telegram message, with a code word the shop will track at the counter. That is what a real local sponsorship looks like at a small scale.

DO List ten businesses in your city that sell to the same people who watch you. Not the biggest ten. The ten most likely to have a few thousand dollars a month for promotion and a phone number you can reach. Google Maps and the online business directory business guide, which filters across fourteen cities, both help here.

CHECK For each of the ten, you can explain in one sentence why your audience is their customer. If you cannot, remove that name and add another.

> MOST SMALL SMALL LOCAL BUSINESSES ARE NOT DURABLE ADVERTISERS
>
> More than 80% of federal business licences issued went dormant during 2025, according to The Reporter your country. Many of the businesses you approach will not be in a position to pay for promotion next month, and some will disappear. That is not a reason to avoid sponsorship. It is a reason to get paid before you post, to keep several small sponsors rather than one large one, and to never build a month's income on a single business.

6.2 The one-page media kit

A media kit is a single page that answers the three questions a business owner is silently asking: who will see this, what do I get, and what does it cost. Keep it to one page. A phone screenshot of one page gets read; a five-page PDF does not.

SECTION	WHAT GOES IN IT	RULES
Header	Your name, your niche in one line, your city, your phone number	The phone number must be on it. Many local buyers will call rather than message
Who you reach	City, age range, and what they have in common	Describe people, not a demographic chart. "Café owners and young office workers in a regional city"

SECTION	WHAT GOES IN IT	RULES
The numbers	Followers, median views over your last 20 posts, and your best post with its real figure	Median, not average, and not your single best post pretending to be typical

SECTION	WHAT GOES IN IT	RULES
What you offer	Three packages with what is included and how many posts	Three options, never a menu of twelve

SECTION	WHAT GOES IN IT	RULES
Example prices	One price per package	Label them as examples on your own kit too, so the buyer understands they are a starting point
Proof	Two screenshots: a real comment from a customer, and one post with its reach figure	Real only. A fabricated screenshot ends the relationship and your reputation
How to proceed	One line: "Call or message me and I will send the agreement the same day"	Make the next step absurdly small

COPY-READY: ONE-PAGE MEDIA KIT

[Your name] — [short videos for cafés in a regional city]

[City] | [phone number] | Telegram: [link]

Who I reach. [About 2,400 followers], mostly [people aged 20 to 35 in a regional city], including [café owners, students and office workers].

My numbers, honestly. Followers: [number]. Median views across my last 20 posts: [number]. Best post: [number] views ([what it was]).

What I offer.

• Single mention — one video mentioning your business, plus a Telegram post. From [1,500] USD.

• Three-post package — three videos over [two weeks], plus two Telegram posts and one pinned message. From [4,000] USD.

• Monthly partner — [eight] pieces across the month, first look at any content I make about your category. From [9,000] USD.

Proof. [Attach two real screenshots: one customer comment, one post with its reach figure.]

Next step. Call or message me on [number]. I will send a one-page written agreement the same day, and I take payment before the first post.

Example prices shown are illustrations, not a rate card.

6.3 Pricing from reach, not follower count

EXPLAIN

Followers are a stored number. Reach is what actually happens. Price from the median number of people who see a post, because that is what the business is buying. A business is not paying for your follower count. It is paying for a certain number of local people to see its name.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city has 6,000 followers but a median of 900 views per post, which is normal, because most followers never see most posts. She used to quote from 6,000 and was rejected. She now quotes from 900, explains the number openly, and closes small deals. The honest smaller number is more persuasive than the impressive larger one, because the buyer can check it.

DO Open your last 20 posts. Write down the views for each. Sort them and take the middle number. That is your median, and it is the only number you quote in a sponsorship conversation.

CHECK You can say your median out loud and explain what it means in one sentence: "Half of my posts reach more than this and half reach less." A buyer who hears that knows you are not exaggerating, and that is worth more than a big number.

900 median views → 3 posts → about 2,700 local impressions
Quoted at $25 for the three-post package
```

This is a labelled example of how to reason about a price, not a market rate. The useful question is not "what do creators charge?" but "what would this business otherwise pay to put its name in front of roughly 2,700 people in this city?" Ask the business what it spends on printed flyers. That number is a better anchor than any figure in this book.

Five things that raise what a sponsor will pay

— A specific audience. "Café owners in a regional city" is worth more to a café supplier than "young people where you live".

— Proof of action. Comments, direct messages and code words used at the counter beat view counts.

— An exclusive window. Offering a business first refusal in its category for a month is worth real money to them.

— Repeat performance. A second month costs you less effort and is worth more, because you both know what happened.

— Delivery on time. Late delivery lowers the price of everything you do afterwards, permanently.

6.4 A proposal, not a request

The difference between a request and a proposal is who is taking the risk. A request asks the business to take a chance on you. A proposal shows them what they get, what it costs, and what happens if it does not work.

COPY-READY: SPONSORSHIP PROPOSAL MESSAGE

Selam [name], I am [your name]. I make videos for [people in a regional city who cook at home] — my posts reach about [900] people on a typical day, mostly [women aged 25 to 40 in the city].

Here is a proposal, not a request. For [4,000] USD I will make [three] videos over [two weeks] showing [your mixed spice] being used in [three home dishes], plus [two] posts in my Telegram channel.

To track it, I will use one code word — [word] — and tell my audience to say it at your counter. You tell me how many people said it. That is the honest measure, not my view count.

Payment before the first post, and a one-page agreement that says exactly what I will deliver and when. If you want to start small, one video for [1,500] USD is fine.

Shall I send the agreement?

Note what this message does: it names a real reach figure, offers a small entry option, proposes a measurable code word, and asks for a yes to the next small step rather than to the whole deal.

6.5 What to deliver, and how to prove it

STAGE	WHAT YOU DO	WHY IT MATTERS
Before	One-page written agreement: what you deliver, on what dates, what you are paid, when, and what happens if either side stops	Prevents the two arguments that kill small deals: "I thought you meant more posts" and "I will pay you later"
Payment	Payment before the first post, in full or half and half	You are an individual, not a credit facility. This is normal in small local business and nobody is offended by it
During	Send a message on the day each piece goes live, with the link	The business owner wants to see it happening. Silence makes them think nothing is being done
After	One short report: views, comments, saves, messages, and how many people used the code word	This is the document that sells the second month, and the referral to another business
Disclosure	State clearly in the post that it is a paid partnership	Required by platform rules and by honesty. Section 09 covers how to write it

COPY-READY: ONE-PAGE SPONSORSHIP AGREEMENT

Agreement between [your name], creator, [city], phone [number], and [business name], phone [number].

1. What I deliver. [three] videos on [platform] and [two] posts in my Telegram channel, published between [date] and [date].

2. What I will say. I will describe [product] honestly and I will not make claims about [health, income or results].

3. Disclosure. Every paid post will be labelled as a paid partnership.

4. Payment. [Amount] USD, paid [in full before the first post / half before and half on completion], by [wallet or bank transfer].

5. Reporting. I will send one report within [three] days of the final post, with views, comments and the number of code words used.

6. If either side stops. If I do not publish what I promised, I refund the unpaid portion. If you ask me to stop, I keep payment for work already published and we stop there.

7. Content rights. You may repost the videos on your own pages. You may not edit them to change what I said, and you may not sell them to another business.

8. Agreed by [name] and [name], on [date]. A reply saying "agreed" to this message counts as acceptance.

This is a plain-language agreement, not a legal contract, and it is not legal advice. For anything larger than a few thousand dollars, or anything with an exclusivity clause, get proper advice before you sign.

6.6 Lead generation: the path that suits a small local audience

EXPLAIN Lead generation means you are paid for customers you send, not for posts you publish. A restaurant pays you for confirmed table bookings. A tour operator pays you per booked trip. A shop pays you per sale that used your code. A clinic pays you per attended appointment. You are not selling advertising. You are selling outcomes.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a smaller town makes videos about weekend trips. A fictional guesthouse agrees to pay [150] USD for every booking that mentions her name. She posts one honest video about the guesthouse, mentions the arrangement openly, and sends bookings for months without making another video. Her audience is small. Her trust is high. That combination is exactly what lead generation rewards.

DO Pick one business you already use and like. Write down one sentence describing what a genuine customer is worth to them, and propose a per-lead amount. Keep it small enough that the owner can say yes today without asking anyone.

CHECK You have a written agreement with a tracking method that does not depend on you trusting their memory. If you cannot describe how a lead will be counted, you do not have a deal yet.

WHY THIS WORKS UNUSUALLY WELL WITH A SMALL LOCAL AUDIENCE

Sponsorship needs reach. Lead generation needs trust, and trust does not scale with follower count. Two thousand followers who believe you is enough to send a steady stream of customers to one restaurant, one guesthouse or one clinic. Every one of those businesses is reachable on Google Maps, and most of them have never been offered a pay-per-customer arrangement by anyone. You are not competing with an agency. You are the only person who asked.

BUSINESS TYPE	WHAT COUNTS AS A LEAD	EXAMPLE PAYMENT	HOW TO TRACK IT HONESTLY
Café or restaurant	A booking or a walk-in that names you	50 – $0.60 per customer	A code word or your name written on the order slip

BUSINESS TYPE	WHAT COUNTS AS A LEAD	EXAMPLE PAYMENT	HOW TO TRACK IT HONESTLY
Tour operator or guesthouse	A booked trip or a confirmed room night	150 – $3 per booking	A booking reference the customer must mention, logged by the operator

BUSINESS TYPE	WHAT COUNTS AS A LEAD	EXAMPLE PAYMENT	HOW TO TRACK IT HONESTLY
Shop or online seller	A delivered order from your link or code	5 – 10% of the order value	A code word used in the order message

BUSINESS TYPE	WHAT COUNTS AS A LEAD	EXAMPLE PAYMENT	HOW TO TRACK IT HONESTLY
Clinic or dental practice	An appointment that is actually attended	80 – $1.25 per attended visit	A named appointment book checked by the receptionist
Gym or fitness studio	A trial session attended, or a membership signed	100 – $2 per sign-up	A registration form with a "how did you hear about us" line

All payments in this table are labelled examples for teaching, not market rates. Ask the business what a customer is worth to them, then propose something small enough that saying yes is straightforward.

6.7 Agreeing and tracking a lead deal

COPY-READY: PER-LEAD AGREEMENT MESSAGE

Selam [owner's name]. Here is what I propose, and it costs you nothing until it works.

I will make [one] video and [one] Telegram post about [the guesthouse], honestly, including the parts I do not like. I will tell my audience to mention the word [WORD] when they book.

For every booking that mentions [WORD], you pay me [150] USD. Nothing else. No upfront fee.

You write down every booking that uses the word, with the date. Every [two weeks] you send me a photo of that list and pay for the bookings on it. At any point either of us can stop, and bookings already made are still paid.

If that is acceptable, reply "agreed" and I will start [this week].

THE THREE WAYS LEAD DEALS GO WRONG

— No tracking method. If nobody writes anything down, the count becomes an argument you cannot win. Agree the code word and the log before you post.

— You get paid for enquiries, not customers. An enquiry costs the business nothing. Ask to be paid for attended visits, delivered orders or confirmed bookings instead.

— You recommend something you would not use. One bad recommendation and your audience stops believing the next nine. Refuse the deal, or say the honest negative in the video. A review that includes a real criticism converts better than praise.

SECTION 06 OUTPUT

Ten potential sponsors listed with a reason for each, your median views calculated from your last twenty posts, a one-page media kit built and saved as a single image, and one written lead-generation proposal sent to a real business.

SECTION SEVEN

Paths Five and Six: Community and Consulting

Building a paid or sponsor-supported Telegram community that members actually value, the moderation habits and published rules that keep it alive, then consulting and paid teaching through one-to-one sessions, workshops and corporate training, with copy-ready launch and pitch messages.

01 Path five: the paid or sponsor-supported community

02 What the community must give members

03 Moderation, rules and staying out of the spam pile

04 Path six: consulting and paid teaching

05 Pricing sessions, workshops and corporate training

06 Copy-ready launch, recruitment and pitch messages

These are the two paths that pay for expertise rather than reach. A community pays you for belonging. Consulting pays you for knowing something. Both are built on the same foundation: you have to actually deliver, every week, to people who can leave at any time.

These are also the two paths most likely to become a second job. Go in with your eyes open about the hours.

7.1 Path five: the community

EXPLAIN A community is a group of people who pay, or whose presence attracts a sponsor, in exchange for something they get on a schedule. It is not a fan group and it is not a broadcast channel. The difference is that members get something specific, repeatedly, and they notice when it stops.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in your city runs a paid Telegram group for people preparing for a professional exam. Members pay a small monthly amount. Every Sunday they get a summary sheet. Every Wednesday there is a one-hour question session. Members post their own answers and correct each other. The creator spends about four hours a week on it. That is the deal: a small amount of money, a clear schedule, and four hours of work.

DO Write the schedule before you write the sales message. Two fixed things per week, on named days, that you can deliver for at least three months without missing. If you cannot name them, you do not have a community yet.

CHECK A member could explain to a friend what they get and when, in one sentence, without looking it up. If they would have to check, the promise is not clear enough.

Three community models that fit your country

MODEL	HOW THE MONEY WORKS	WHAT MEMBERS GET	HONEST DIFFICULTY
Paid membership	Members pay a small monthly amount by wallet or bank transfer; you give access to a private group	A scheduled benefit, direct access to you, and other members	Highest. Every month you must earn the renewal, and churn is constant
Free community, sponsor-supported	One or two sponsors pay to be present; membership is free	Free useful content plus the sponsor's offers	Medium. Easier to grow, harder to price, and the sponsor can leave
Free community as a funnel	Membership is free and the community sells your service, product or consulting	Free tips and first access to your paid work	Lowest to run, and the slowest to produce income

Payment for a paid community follows the same rules as everything else in this course: wallet or bank transfer from local members, within your regulator limits, and never crypto or an unlicensed remittance route.

7.2 Moderation, rules and staying out of the spam pile

Most local Telegram groups die for the same three reasons: nothing is posted on a schedule, the group fills with forwarded chain messages, and the admin disappears. All three are preventable with habits, not software.

The five published rules

1. No forwarded chain messages, blessings, or "send to ten people" posts.
2. No advertising your own business without asking me first.
3. No screenshots of members' messages shared outside this group.
4. No medical, legal or investment advice given as if it were certain.
5. Disagree with the idea, never with the person. One warning, then removal.

The moderation habits

— Pin the rules and the schedule where new members see them first

— Check the group twice a day, at fixed times, rather than constantly

— Answer every question within 24 hours, even if the answer is "I do not know, I will check"

— Remove spam immediately and publicly, once, without an argument

— Post a short weekly summary so quiet members still get value

— Ask once a month what members want changed, and act on one answer

HOW A COMMUNITY BECOMES A SPAM CHANNEL

It happens slowly. First you allow one member to advertise. Then three more ask. Then the useful members stop posting because every time they open the group there are nine adverts and one question. Then the useful members leave, and you are left running an advertising board with no audience. The rule is simple: no member advertising without your explicit yes, and never more than one per day.

NEVER LET YOUR COMMUNITY BECOME AN INVESTMENT CHANNEL

Telegram is full of groups promising returns from trading, crypto, "digital mining" or "investment pools". Virtual-asset activity is prohibited where you live unless expressly authorised, and unlicensed money remittance is illegal. If a member starts promoting one of these in your group, remove it immediately. If a sponsor wants you to promote one, refuse, even for a large fee. Running that content puts your name on something that can end with your members losing money and the authorities asking you questions.

7.3 Path six: consulting and paid teaching

This is the fastest path for someone who already has real expertise. It is also the one where a small audience matters least, because a single decision-maker can hire you without any audience at all.

FORMAT	WHO BUYS IT	WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE	EXAMPLE PRICE	MAIN CONSTRAINT
One-to-one session	Individuals with a specific problem: a shop owner, a student, a job seeker	60 to 90 minutes on a call or in person, with notes sent afterwards	400 – $8 per session	Your time, one hour at a time. No leverage
Small group workshop	Students, small business owners, a professional association	2 to 3 hours, 6 to 15 people, one clear outcome, a workbook	200 – $3 per seat	You must fill the seats yourself, and no-shows cost you the room
Corporate training	Banks, hotels, NGOs, private colleges, BPO firms	A half-day or full-day session for a team, with a written outline and a report	6,000 – $25,000 per contract	Slow decisions, procurement, and they may require a TIN or a licence before they can pay you
Paid teaching series	A cohort of learners who want a skill, not a single answer	Four to eight live sessions over several weeks, with homework	800 – $16 per learner	You now run a school. Attendance drops, and you must keep the quality up

All prices are labelled examples for teaching, not market rates. There is no published local rate card for creator consulting that this course could verify. For context on the training market: a private in-person digital-skills course has been reported at around $125 and described as far beyond the reach of most families, the government-backed digital skills programme recorded 5,005,146 enrolments by June 2026 with a target raised to 7 million, and your country's BPO sector reported around USD 50 million in revenue with roughly 25,000 employees in 2025. That tells you training demand is real and price-sensitive.

EXPLAIN Consulting is sold on a named outcome, not on your knowledge. "I know social media" is not buyable. "In two hours I will set up your Telegram ordering flow and train one staff member to run it" is buyable, because the buyer can picture the end.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator who has run a Telegram shop for two years offers a fictional clothing shop a three-hour session: set up a channel, write a product post template, train one person to post daily, and leave a one-page procedure. Price [2,500] USD. The buyer is not paying for knowledge. They are paying for a working system and a trained person.

DO Write your offer in one sentence using this shape: "In [time] I will [specific deliverable], and you will have [the thing they can use]." Then write the price next to it.

CHECK The buyer can repeat your offer back to you accurately after hearing it once. If they cannot, it is too abstract to sell.

> IF A CORPORATE CLIENT ASKS FOR A TIN OR A LICENCE
>
> Larger organisations often cannot pay an individual without paperwork. A TIN is mandatory where you live, and corporate buyers may require a trade licence or a formal invoice. Decide before the meeting whether you are willing to register. Being turned down at the payment stage after delivering the training is a costly lesson, so ask the payment question in the first conversation, not the last.

7.4 Copy-ready messages

COPY-READY: LAUNCHING A COMMUNITY

I am opening a small group for [people preparing for the exam].

What you get: a summary sheet every [Sunday], and a live question session every [Wednesday] at [20:00].

What you pay: [150] USD a month. Cancel any time by telling me, and you pay nothing more.

How many people: I am taking [20] to start, because I want to answer everyone properly.

What I need from you: ask questions, and tell me honestly if a session was not useful.

If you want in, send [150] USD to [wallet detail] and send me the screenshot. I will add you and send the rules.

COPY-READY: RECRUITING THE FIRST TWENTY MEMBERS, ONE AT A TIME

Selam [name], you asked me about [the exam] a few weeks ago.

I am starting a small group — [20] people maximum — where I send a summary every [Sunday] and run a question session every [Wednesday] night.

It is [150] USD a month and you can leave whenever you want.

I am asking you first because [you actually asked questions last time]. If it is not for you, tell me honestly and I will not ask again.

Twenty personal messages beat one public announcement, because the first twenty members decide whether the group feels alive. A group of twenty engaged people is worth more than two hundred silent ones, and it is also the only version you can moderate alone.

COPY-READY: PITCHING A PAID WORKSHOP TO A LOCAL BUSINESS

Selam [name], I am [your name], I run [what you do] in [city].

I would like to run a [three]-hour workshop for [your staff] on [photographing and posting your own products].

What they leave with: [each person posts one product properly, on their own phone, before the session ends].

What you get afterwards: [a one-page procedure sheet the team can follow without me].

Price: [6,000] USD for up to [12] people, at your place or mine.

What I need from you: a room, a table, and a phone for each person. That is all.

Would [a date two weeks from now] work, or is there a better week?

7.5 Choosing between the six paths, one last time

IF THIS DESCRIBES YOU	START WITH	BECAUSE
You have a skill people already pay for	Service, then consulting	You can be paid before your audience is large at all

IF THIS DESCRIBES YOU	START WITH	BECAUSE
You already teach something well and enjoy explaining	Community or paid teaching	You are selling a schedule, which is easier than selling a promise

You cannot show your face or do not want to	Digital product, or lead generation	Both work without a personality in front of the camera

IF THIS DESCRIBES YOU	START WITH	BECAUSE
You know one local business community very well	Lead generation, then sponsorship	Trust in a small circle converts faster than reach in a big one
You have a phone, one hour a day, and no skill yet	Service, learning the skill in public	Your learning series is itself content, and it doubles as proof of work

SECTION 07 OUTPUT

A written community schedule with two fixed weekly items, five published rules, one consulting offer written in the "in [time] I will [deliverable]" shape with a price, and three personal recruitment messages sent to three real people.

SECTION EIGHT

Telegram as the Home Base

Why Telegram matters where you live, channel versus group versus bot, a channel setup that converts a visitor into a subscriber, a posting rhythm, the exact wording to move followers across from TikTok and Instagram, a simple order or booking flow, and how to keep your list usable when a platform goes dark.

01 Why Telegram matters here more than it does elsewhere

02 Channel, group or bot: choosing the right container

03 Setting up a channel that converts

04 A posting rhythm you can keep

05 Moving followers from TikTok and Instagram, with exact wording

06 The order and booking flow, and keeping your list safe

TikTok and Instagram are where strangers find you. Telegram is where the relationship lives, where orders happen, and where you still exist if a feed stops loading.

Every profile you own should point to one place. This section builds that place.

8.1 Why Telegram matters here more than it does elsewhere

EXPLAIN On TikTok and Instagram, you rent an audience from a platform. The platform decides who sees your post, and it can remove your account, change its rules, or stop loading entirely. On Telegram, you hold the list. A channel member can be reached directly, and the message arrives whether or not an algorithm approves.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city built 4,000 followers on one video app and 600 Telegram channel members. When the app stopped loading in her area for several days, her follower count was unreachable. Her Telegram channel still worked, orders still came in through it, and she kept working. The 600 mattered more than the 4,000.

DO Create one Telegram channel today. Not a group, not a bot. A channel. Put the link in your TikTok and Instagram bios before you do anything else, even if the channel has three members and one post.

CHECK You can find your own channel in ten seconds from a cold start: open Telegram, search your channel name, tap it. If searching your own channel name does not bring it up, your name is wrong and nobody else will find it either.

> THE ONE-LINE REASON
> A follower is a number on somebody else's server. A channel member is a person you can send a message to. That is the entire argument for Telegram, and it is the reason this section exists in a course about TikTok and Instagram income.

8.2 Channel, group or bot

CONTAINER	WHAT IT IS	USE IT FOR	WHEN IT IS WRONG
Channel	You broadcast, members read. Only admins post unless you allow comments	Your main home base: announcements, tips, prices, launches, order instructions	When you actually need a conversation between members
Group	Everyone can post. A conversation among members	A paid community (Section 07), a study group, a peer support group	As your main marketing surface. Groups fill with spam and go quiet fast
Bot	An automated account that responds to commands and can sell digital goods	Delivering a paid file automatically, taking orders at scale, answering the same question twenty times	Before you have steady orders. A bot is a solution to volume you do not have yet

Start with a channel. Add a group only when you are running a paid community. Add a bot only when you are answering the same question every day and it is costing you real time. Telegram Stars, which is globally available for digital goods through bots, is covered in Section 05, including why you should treat it as a payment rail rather than a business model.

8.3 Setting up a channel that converts

ELEMENT	WHAT TO SET	WHY
Channel name	The thing people search for, plus the benefit. `a regional city Café Tips` beats `Selam's Channel`	People find channels by typing words, not by remembering names

ELEMENT	WHAT TO SET	WHY
Handle	Short, no numbers, same as your other two platforms	One identity across three platforms is easier to remember and easier to type

ELEMENT	WHAT TO SET	WHY
Description	Who it is for, what they get, how often, and what you sell	A visitor decides whether to join in about five seconds
Profile photo	A clear image, ideally the same as your other profiles	Recognition across platforms

ELEMENT	WHAT TO SET	WHY
Pinned message	The welcome message with the rules, the schedule, and the next step	This is your landing page. It does the selling while you are asleep
Second pinned message	Your prices, plainly stated	Removes the most common reason people do not ask: not knowing the price
Comments	On, once you can moderate them twice a day	Comments are where a quiet audience becomes a visible one
Invite link	A permanent link, saved in your notes	You will paste it dozens of times. Do not regenerate it after people join

COPY-READY: THE SECOND PINNED MESSAGE — YOUR PRICES

What I do and what it costs

- [10 edited photos] — [2,500] USD
- [4 short videos] — [4,000] USD
- [One month, 12 pieces] — [9,000] USD

How it works: you message me here, I ask two questions, I send a written scope, you pay [half] before I start.

Delivery: [five] working days after the shoot.

Payment: [a mobile wallet or bank transfer].

Prices shown are examples and may change. Ask me for a current quote.

8.4 A posting rhythm you can keep

EXPLAIN

A channel dies from silence faster than from bad content, because a silent channel tells members nothing is happening. Pick a rhythm you can hold during exams, a busy week at work, and a bad connection. Two posts a week is a real rhythm. Five posts one week and none the next is not.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in your city posts on Monday and Thursday. Monday is a useful tip, written in five lines, no image. Thursday is either a piece of work she published that week, or an answer to a question a member sent. Short, useful, on schedule, every week. She has never missed a week in four months because the format is small enough to survive a bad week.

DO Choose two days and two formats. Write them into your notes and into your channel description so members know when to expect you. Then treat those two days as a commitment to other people, not to yourself, because that is what they are.

CHECK Look at your channel's last six posts. Are they on the two days you promised, and is at least one of them useful without any picture? If not, simplify the format until it survives a bad week.

POST TYPE	WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE	WHEN TO USE IT
Tip	Five lines of plain text. One useful thing. No link, no ask	Your default post. Two out of three posts should be this
Work	The piece you published this week, with one line about what it did	Weekly, once you have clients or products
Answer	A question a member asked, answered properly, with their permission	Whenever you get a good question. These posts build the most trust
Offer	Your prices, or a specific opening: "I have space for one more client this month"	Once every two weeks at most, or the channel becomes a shop
Proof	A result, a screenshot, a thank-you message with permission	When something real happens. Never fabricate one

8.5 Moving followers from TikTok and Instagram

Asking people to move to another app is a favour, so give them a reason and make it one tap. Two places do the work: the bio link, and a spoken line in the video.

COPY-READY: WHAT TO SAY IN A VIDEO, WORD FOR WORD

Option one, at the end of a useful video:

"If you want the full list, it is in my Telegram channel — the link is in my bio. There is no charge for the channel."

Option two, when the video is about something you sell:

"Prices are in my Telegram channel so I do not have to repeat them in every comment. Link in bio."

Option three, when the platform is unreliable:

"Follow me here, and join the Telegram channel too, because sometimes this app does not load for me and I want you to still be able to reach me."

What not to say: "link in bio" with no reason, or "DM me for details". Both ask for effort and give nothing back.

COPY-READY: THE PINNED COMMENT

Full [list of prices / template pack / 30-day plan] is in my Telegram channel: [link]

It is free to join. I post there [twice] a week.

THREE MISTAKES THAT KILL THE TRANSFER

— Asking people to join a channel that has nothing in it. Post five useful things before you start inviting. A member who joins an empty channel leaves and does not come back.

— Promising something you do not deliver. If you say "the full list is in the channel", the full list must be there. One broken promise ends the transfer permanently.

— Saying the link out loud but not writing it. People watch with sound off. Put the words on the screen as well as in the comment and the bio.

8.6 The order and booking flow

A buyer who has to ask three questions before paying usually does not pay. Build one flow and use it every time.

1. Picture the flow in the pinned message
   Prices, what is included, delivery time, payment method, and how to start. A buyer should be able to decide without sending a single message.

2. Let them start with one word
   Ask for a single word, not a form: "Send the word PHOTO and I will reply with the details." One word is a smaller action than filling anything in, and it starts a private conversation.

3. Ask exactly two questions
   What do you want customers to do, and when do you need it. Two questions. Every extra question loses buyers.

4. Send a written scope before payment
   Five lines: what you deliver, how many, by when, the price, and what you need from them. Ask them to reply "agreed". That reply is your agreement.

5. Take payment, then deliver on the date
   Wallet or bank transfer for local buyers, with a receipt sent back. Deliver on the promised date even if you are not perfectly happy with the work. Reliability is what buys the second job.

6. Ask for one thing afterwards
   A short sentence you may quote, or the name of one person who might need the same work. One ask, not three.

8.7 Keeping your list usable if a platform goes down

Section 04 set out the documented record of shutdowns where you live. This is what that means in practice for your channel.

Do this before you need it

- [ ] Save the phone numbers of your twenty most valuable contacts in your phone's own address book, not only inside an app
- [ ] Write the same twenty numbers on paper and keep the paper somewhere you will find it
- [ ] Keep a copy of your prices, your scope template and your portfolio folder available offline on the device
- [ ] Tell your audience, in a normal post on a normal day, that Telegram is where you always are
- [ ] Keep a second wallet or bank detail so a client can still pay you if one rail is unavailable

What to do during a block

— Call people. Voice calls on a weak network often work when data does not — Keep producing. Finish pieces and save them, so you are ready rather than catching up

— Do not delete or change anything you cannot see the result of — Honour the promises you already made, by phone, on the day you made them

— Write down the dates and how long it lasted. Repeated outages are a business risk worth planning around

WHAT YOU MUST NOT DO WITH YOUR LIST

— Do not sell, share or forward your members' phone numbers to anyone, ever, for any fee.

— Do not add people to a group without asking them first. Being added without consent is the fastest way to be reported and blocked.

— Do not use your channel to promote crypto, trading pools or "investment" schemes. Virtual-asset activity is prohibited where you live unless expressly authorised, and unlicensed money remittance is illegal.

8.8 Channel setup checklist

- [ ] Channel created with a searchable name that includes the benefit
- [ ] Handle matches my TikTok and Instagram handles
- [ ] Description says who it is for, what they get, how often, and what I sell
- [ ] Profile photo is clear and the same image or style as my other profiles
- [ ] Pinned message one: welcome, schedule, rules, next step
- [ ] Pinned message two: my prices, plainly written
- [ ] Five useful posts published before I invited anybody
- [ ] Permanent invite link saved in my notes and pasted into both other bios
- [ ] Two posting days chosen and written into the description
- [ ] Comments on, and I check them twice a day at fixed times
- [ ] Twenty key contacts saved in my phone's address book and on paper
- [ ] Prices, scope template and portfolio folder available offline
- [ ] Order flow written into the pinned messages
- [ ] Rules published, including no forwarded chain messages and no member advertising without permission

SECTION 08 OUTPUT

A live Telegram channel with a searchable name, a description, two pinned messages, five useful posts, a permanent invite link in both other bios, two named posting days, and twenty contacts saved where you can reach them without an app.

SECTION NINE

Protecting Yourself: Reputation, Copyright and Platform Rules

What you may and may not repost, music and audio rights, using other people footage, disclosing paid partnerships honestly, avoiding health, money and legal claims you cannot support, handling pile-ons, the documented self-censorship pressure where you live, and a hard rule set for what never leaves your phone about a client.

01 What you may and may not repost

02 Music, audio and other people footage

03 Disclosing paid partnerships honestly

04 Claims you cannot make: health, money and law

05 Handling negative comments and pile-ons

06 Self-censorship where you live, and deciding your own line

07 What never leaves your phone about a client

One careless post can cost you more than a year of careful ones earns. This section is the boring, protective half of the business, and it is the half that keeps the other half alive.

None of it is legal advice. It is a working set of rules you can apply without a lawyer, plus the places where you should get proper advice.

9.1 What you may and may not repost

EXPLAIN Making something gives you rights over it. Taking somebody else's work and posting it as your own content is a rights problem and a trust problem at the same time. There is no general "credit the owner and it is fine" rule on any platform.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator reposts a photograph taken by a fictional photographer in a regional city, with the photographer's name in the caption. The photographer asks for it to be removed. The creator argues that credit was given. The platform removes the post, and the shop that had hired the creator sees the whole exchange. Credit is not permission.

DO Make a rule for yourself: if you did not shoot it, write it, or buy the licence, you do not post it as your content. If you want to feature somebody else's work, message them, ask in writing, and keep their reply.

CHECK Look at your last ten posts. For each, you can say in one word where the footage, image or text came from: mine, bought, licensed, or permitted. If any of them is "I do not know", that post is a risk.

MATERIAL	CAN YOU USE IT	WHAT YOU NEED FIRST
Your own footage and photos	Yes	Nothing, except permission from any person recognisable in it
A client's product photos	Usually yes for the client	Written permission to use them in your own portfolio, and a clear answer on whether you may post them publicly
Another creator's video	Not as your content	Written permission, and even then platform rules on unoriginal content may limit how it is distributed
Stock footage from an app or website	Depends on the licence	Read the licence. Some free libraries restrict commercial use, and "free" is not the same as "free for a business post"
News footage or a broadcast clip	Rarely	Permission from the rights holder, or a proper licence. Do not assume commentary makes it acceptable
A screenshot of somebody's post	Only with care	Permission, or genuine public-interest commentary. Never screenshot a private message and post it
Somebody's face in your video	Only with permission	Ask before you film where it is practical, and remove it if they ask you to

This is a practical guide, not legal advice. local copyright and personality rights questions should go to a qualified professional, especially for anything commercial.

9.2 Music, audio and other people's footage

— Use the platform's own audio library. When a track is offered inside the app for creators, that is the version with the licence already handled. Taking the same track from somewhere else is not the same thing.

— Be careful with music you did not licence for commercial use. A paid sponsorship or an advert for a client is commercial use. A track that is fine for a personal video may not be fine there.
— Be careful with other people's footage inside your video. A few seconds of a film, a match or a broadcast is still somebody's work, and platform rules on reused content are strict.
— Record your own ambient sound. Street noise, a coffee ceremony, a machine in a workshop. It is free, it is yours, and it makes your video sound like nowhere else.
— Keep proof. If you pay for a licence, save the receipt and the terms in one folder. If a claim arrives, that folder is your answer.

THE RULE FOR CLIENT WORK

When you are paid, your client carries the commercial risk of what you publish on their behalf. So use only audio and footage you can point to a licence for, and tell the client in writing which track you used and where it came from. If a claim arrives six months later, you want to be the person who has the receipt.

9.3 Disclosing paid partnerships honestly

If money, goods or a service changed hands, say so. This is not a formality. An undisclosed paid post is the fastest way to lose the trust that took you a month to build, and it can breach platform rules and, in some cases, consumer protection law.

COPY-READY: DISCLOSURE WORDING THAT READS NATURALLY

In the caption, in the first two lines where it is visible without tapping:

"Paid partnership with [business name]. I chose to work with them and I would say so if I did not like it."

Or, spoken in the video:

"This is a paid post for [business name]. They paid me, and I will tell you honestly what I think."

If you received a free product or a free service instead of money:

"[Business name] gave me this at no cost. No money changed hands and they did not ask me to say anything specific."

HONESTY CONVERTS BETTER THAN HIDING

A disclosure that also contains a genuine opinion performs better than a flat advertisement, because the audience can tell the difference between a paid mention and a paid lie. If the product is not good, either say so or do not take the deal. Saying "I was paid and here is what I actually think" is a stronger position than pretending to be a customer.

9.4 Claims you cannot make

AREA	NEVER SAY	SAY THIS INSTEAD
Health and medicine	"This cures", "this treats", "this prevents", "this works for everyone"	"This is what I did and what happened for me", and tell people to speak to a qualified health professional

AREA	NEVER SAY	SAY THIS INSTEAD
Money and income	"You will earn", "guaranteed income", "this made me rich", "passive income"	"This is what I charge as an example", "this is arithmetic, not a forecast", "here is what I actually earned, and it is one person's result"

AREA	NEVER SAY	SAY THIS INSTEAD
Legal matters	"This is legal", "you do not need a licence", "the tax office will not notice"	"Confirm this at your local tax office", "check with a qualified professional"

AREA	NEVER SAY	SAY THIS INSTEAD
Investment and virtual assets	Anything promoting trading, crypto, returns, or "digital mining"	Nothing. Virtual-asset activity is prohibited where you live unless expressly authorised. Do not create this content at all
Other people's results	"My client made this much" without permission and proof	Ask for written permission, and describe the work you did rather than the result they got
Competitors	"Do not use X, it is a scam", unless you have documented proof	Describe what you do and why, and leave the accusations alone

Note that this course itself follows these rules. It never promises income, never states a market rate as a fact, and labels every figure as an example or a source-backed statistic.

9.5 Handling negative comments and pile-ons

EXPLAIN There are three different things people call "negative comments", and they need three different responses: a fair criticism, a disagreement, and an attack. Treating all three the same way is how small accounts get destroyed.

SHOW Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator posts a video about café photography. One comment says the advice about light is wrong for evening service. That is a fair criticism, and answering it publicly with a correction makes the creator look stronger. A second comment says the creator should be ashamed of charging for work. That is an attack, and it needs one calm reply or nothing at all.

DO Write three responses now and save them in your notes: one for a correction, one for a disagreement, one for an attack. Having the words ready is what stops you replying at midnight with something you cannot take back.

CHECK You can read the angriest comment you have received and say which of the three categories it belongs to. If you cannot, you are reading it as a person, not as a business.

COPY-READY: THREE SAVED REPLIES

For a fair correction: "You are right about [the evening light] — that is a case I did not cover. I will make a follow-up on it this week. Thank you for saying it properly."

For a disagreement: "That is a fair position and I see why you hold it. My experience in [city] has been different, which is why I teach it this way. Both can be true."

For an attack: "I hear you. I am not going to argue about it here." Then stop. Do not reply a second time, do not explain yourself, and do not delete it unless it breaks the platform's rules.

IF IT BECOMES A PILE-ON

— Do not post again for a few hours. Every reply you make is new fuel, and the algorithm loves fuel.

— Turn off comments on the one post if the platform allows it. You are not obliged to host a fight.

— Take the real conversation to direct messages or to a phone call with anyone arguing in good faith.

— Do not delete the post unless it is genuinely wrong. Deleting looks like an admission and screenshots survive.

— If you were wrong, say so once, plainly, in one post. Then move on. A clear correction ends most pile-ons faster than any defence.

— If it involves threats, save the evidence and take it seriously. This is one of the situations where you should speak to someone qualified rather than handle it alone.

9.6 Self-censorship where you live, and deciding your own line

This is a real feature of working online where you live, and it deserves to be stated plainly rather than avoided.

THE DOCUMENTED POSITION

Freedom House scored your country 30 out of 100, rated "Not Free", in Freedom on the Net 2025, with the Obstacles to Access sub-score at 7 out of 25. The same report period covers the shutdowns described in Section 04: a nationwide block of Facebook, Telegram, TikTok and YouTube from February to July 2023, the Amhara Region shutdown from July 2023 to July 2024, localised Oromia shutdowns, and reports of slowing and the restriction of YouTube in several cities in June 2025.

Creators respond to this in different ways. Some avoid politics entirely. Some self-censor comments and direct messages. Some keep a second, quieter account. Some stop posting anything that could be read as an opinion. Whatever you choose, make it a decision rather than a habit you never noticed making.

How to decide what you are willing to post

1. Write your own line down, once

   One page, in your own words: what you will post about, what you will not, and what you would do if a post caused a problem. A written line is easier to hold than a feeling.

1. Ask what your business needs, not only what you feel

   If your path is local service work and sponsorships, your commercial risk from a divisive post is higher than a faceless product account's. That is a business fact, not a political position, and it is fair to weigh it.

1. Separate the professional account from the personal one

   Many creators keep a public account for work and a small private circle for everything else. This is a legitimate and common arrangement, and it protects both parts of your life.

1. Never post a person's identifying details in anger

   Names, faces, phone numbers, addresses, workplace, number plates. Not for a scammer, not for a bad client, not for someone who insulted you. Naming somebody publicly can create consequences you cannot control.

2. Assume everything is permanent

   Screenshots survive deletion and get forwarded far beyond the audience you were thinking about when you posted. If you would be uncomfortable seeing it in a group you are not in, do not post it.

9.7 What never leaves your phone about a client

This list is short, absolute, and worth more to your career than any single post. Every item on it has ended a working relationship somewhere.

- [ ] A client's phone number, address or personal details, anywhere public
- [ ] A screenshot of a private message, including one where the client was rude
- [ ] A client's sales figures, customer list, supplier names or prices paid to suppliers
- [ ] Unreleased products, a new menu, a shop opening or a launch date
- [ ] A person's face or voice recorded inside a client's premises without permission
- [ ] A payment amount, a discount you gave, or a conversation about money
- [ ] A complaint about a client, even with the name removed, if the situation is recognisable
- [ ] Anything a client told you in confidence, ever, for any reason, including after the relationship ends

WHAT YOU MAY POST ABOUT CLIENT WORK

The work itself, with permission. A before-and-after. A process clip. A result the client has agreed you may share. A one-line testimonial they wrote and approved. That is a long list, and it is enough to build a portfolio on. Everything else stays in the chat.

SECTION 09 OUTPUT

A written rule about what you will and will not repost, three saved replies for three kinds of comment, a disclosure sentence you can paste in ten seconds, a written page stating your own line about what you post, and the client confidentiality list copied into your notes.

SECTION TEN

The 30-Day Build

A day-by-day plan: define the niche and the money path, set up three profiles and one Telegram channel, build a content bank of thirty pieces, publish one a day, read the four analytics that matter, start real conversations, and make the first monetization attempt in the final week. Then the honest month-two plan.

01 How the thirty days are structured

02 Days 01 to 05: foundation and the content bank

03 Days 06 to 14: publish daily and start reading the right numbers

04 Days 15 to 22: proof, prices and the first approaches

05 Days 23 to 30: the first monetization attempt

06 The honest month-two plan

Thirty days, about an hour a day, one piece published every day from Day 01. By Day 30 you will have thirty published pieces, a Telegram channel with real members, and at least one genuine conversation about money.

Everything before this section was preparation. This is the part where you work.

DAYS	FOCUS	WHAT YOU ARE BUILDING
01 to 05	Foundation	Chosen path, ten named buyers, three fixed profiles, a Telegram channel, and a written 30-piece content bank
06 to 14	Volume and feedback	Daily publishing, two batch sessions, and learning which numbers actually predict a buyer
15 to 22	Proof and price	A price list, a media kit, a validation question to your own audience, and the first approaches to real businesses
23 to 30	Money	The first direct ask, follow-ups, a four-week review, and an honest month-two plan

BEFORE YOU START, ACCEPT THESE FOUR THINGS

— Most of your first ten pieces will be weak. That is the normal cost of learning, not evidence that this does not work.

— Nobody may reply for two weeks. Silence in week one is the starting condition, not a verdict.

— Your connection will fail at least once. That is why the offline kit in Section 04 comes before the publishing week.

— Thirty pieces does not guarantee income. It guarantees thirty pieces, honest data, and a real conversation. Whether that becomes money depends on your niche, your skill, your market and things outside your control.

10.2 Days 01 to 05: foundation and the content bank

DAY 01 Choose the money path and open the channel

OBJECTIVE Commit to one of the six paths and create the container your audience will live in.

TASK Read Section 1.3 and write your one sentence: "I am building for the _____ path, so the buyer is _____, and my content must prove _____." Then create your Telegram channel with a searchable name and a description from the template in Section 8.3.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Selam in a regional city writes: "I am building for the service path, so the buyer is café and shop owners in a regional city, and my content must prove I can make their products look worth buying."

OUTPUT One written sentence. One live channel with a name, a description and a photo. Piece 01 published: a text-on-screen video introducing what you are about to do for the next thirty days.

CHECK

- [ ] My path sentence names a buyer, not an audience
- [ ] My channel appears when I search its name
- [ ] Piece 01 is published, not drafted

DAY 02 Pass the ten-buyer test

OBJECTIVE Prove your niche has buyers before you spend a month on it.

TASK Open Google Maps and search your category in your city. Also check a local classifieds site and the online business directory business guide, which filters businesses across fourteen cities. Write ten real names with a phone number or an address for each. If you reach ten with time to spare, look for ten more.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city lists ten cafés, notes that four have not posted in over a month, and writes one specific observation next to each.

OUTPUT A named list of ten buyers, with one observation each. Piece 02 published: a plain text post in your Telegram channel explaining who the channel is for.

CHECK

- [ ] Ten names, not ten categories
- [ ] At least four could be visited or called this week
- [ ] Each name has one specific observation, not a general comment

DAY 03 Rebuild all three profiles

OBJECTIVE Make a stranger understand what you do in three seconds on every platform.

TASK Write your positioning sentence from Section 2.4. Put it in your TikTok bio, your Instagram bio and your Telegram description. Change your TikTok and Instagram name fields to include your searchable words. Point both bio links at your Telegram channel. Pin one post on each platform that explains what you do.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. "Café Video a regional city" replaces "Selly" in the TikTok name field. One week later, a café owner finds the account by typing "café video a regional city".

OUTPUT Three updated profiles, two bio links pointing to Telegram, three pinned posts. Piece 03 published: a fifteen-second video saying who you help and what you do.

CHECK

- [ ] My name fields contain searchable words
- [ ] Both bio links open my Telegram channel
- [ ] A friend can read my bio and tell me what I sell

DAY 04 Write the 30-piece content bank

OBJECTIVE Never again start a day not knowing what to post.

TASK Open Section 3.7 and copy the six column headers into a notes file. Write all thirty rows: day, pillar, format, hook, what you need, where it points. Use the five pillars in rotation and the twenty hooks in Section 3.3 as starting points, rewritten in your own words.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city fills all thirty rows in ninety minutes, then films nothing for a week and simply works down the list.

OUTPUT A thirty-row content bank on your phone. Piece 04 published: a short post telling your audience you are posting every day for thirty days, and asking them to tell you which topic they want first.

CHECK

- [ ] All six columns are filled for all thirty rows
- [ ] Every row names a specific person it is for
- [ ] No row says "post something about my niche"

DAY 05 Batch film the first five pieces

OBJECTIVE	Build a buffer so one bad connection day does not end the streak.
TASK	Set your camera to 720p. Pick one spot with window light. Film pieces 06 to 10 back to back without moving the phone or changing the light. Do not edit yet. Do not aim for perfect.
EXAMPLE	Example scenario — fictional. Five pieces filmed in forty minutes by a window in a smaller town, with two retakes on the one where a truck went past.
OUTPUT	Five raw clips saved on the device. Piece 05 published: a short clip of the filming session itself, with one line about what you are making.
CHECK	☐ Five clips exist on the device, not in your head ☐ Camera is set to 720p ☐ All five were filmed in the same light

10.3 Days 06 to 14: publish daily and read the right numbers

DAY 06 Edit the batch and publish

OBJECTIVE	Turn raw clips into finished pieces in one editing session.
TASK	Edit all five in CapCut, InShot or VN Editor. Add captions to every piece, because most people watch with sound off. Export at 720p. Check each file size before you save it.
EXAMPLE	Example scenario — fictional. All five edited in one two-hour session on a Monday evening, saved into one folder called "Bank".
OUTPUT	Five finished files in one folder. Piece 06 published.
CHECK	☐ Every piece has on-screen captions ☐ Every file is exported at 720p ☐ The five finished files are saved separately from the raw clips

DAY 07 Publish, then read your first real numbers

OBJECTIVE Learn which numbers predict a buyer, and which one is decoration.

TASK Publish piece 07. Then open your analytics and write down five numbers for each piece you have posted: average watch time, saves, shares, profile visits, and direct messages. Ignore likes.

OUTPUT A simple table in your notes with five numbers per piece. Piece 07 published.

CHECK

- [ ] I can name the one piece that produced the most profile visits
- [ ] I can name the one piece with the best average watch time
- [ ] I have not looked at likes once today

DAY 08 Reply to every comment

OBJECTIVE Turn viewers into people who have spoken to you.

TASK Publish piece 08, then reply to every comment on every piece so far, with a real answer, not a thank-you. Ask one question back where it fits.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A creator replies to a comment saying "my shop is dark" with a two-line specific fix, and that commenter later sends a direct message asking for a price.

OUTPUT Zero unanswered comments. Piece 08 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Every comment has a reply with substance in it
- [ ] At least three replies end with a question
- [ ] I did not argue with anybody

DAY 09 Send five direct messages

OBJECTIVE Start the conversations that eventually become money.

TASK Publish piece 09. Then message five people from your ten-buyer list using the outbound template in Section 5.2. Personalise the observation line for each one. Ask for nothing except a reply.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Five messages to five fictional cafés in a regional city. Two replies, one "not now", zero sales. That is a working first day.

OUTPUT Five messages sent and logged in your notes with the date. Piece 09 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Five messages are in the sent folder, not in a draft
- [ ] Each one names something specific about that business
- [ ] I did not send the same text to all five

DAY 10 Publish, then study watch time

OBJECTIVE Find out where people stop watching, and fix it in the next piece.

TASK Publish piece 10. Open the retention graph on your best and worst pieces. Note the second where viewers leave. Then rewrite the hook of tomorrow's piece using what you saw.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator discovers most viewers leave at second four, during her introduction. She cuts introductions from every future piece.

OUTPUT One written observation about where viewers leave and one change for tomorrow. Piece 10 published.

CHECK

- [ ] I know the second where viewers drop off
- [ ] I have made one specific change, not a general resolution to do better
- [ ] My next hook starts at the value, with no introduction

DAY 11 Build the offline kit

OBJECTIVE Make sure a bad connection day cannot end your streak.

TASK Publish piece 11 from the bank. Then build the Section 4.4 kit: five finished pieces saved, ten hooks written, three text posts drafted, twenty contacts saved in your phone's address book, your price list available offline.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator in a regional city is offline for two days and still publishes, because the pieces were already on the device.

OUTPUT A content buffer on the device and a contact list outside any app. Piece 11 published.

CHECK

- [ ] At least five finished pieces are saved on the device
- [ ] Twenty contacts are in my address book, not only in one app
- [ ] My prices open without an internet connection

DAY 12 Second batch film

OBJECTIVE Refill the buffer with pieces that use what you learned in week one.

TASK Publish piece 12. Then film pieces 16 to 20 back to back, applying the hook fix from Day 10. Same location, same light, same 720p setting.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Five pieces, no introductions, every one starting on the value. Filmed in thirty-five minutes.

OUTPUT Five new raw clips on the device. Piece 12 published.

CHECK

- [ ] No piece starts with a greeting or a channel introduction
- [ ] Five clips exist on the device
- [ ] Each clip has one idea, not two

DAY 13 Edit the second batch

OBJECTIVE Keep the buffer full so publishing is a two-minute job each day.

TASK Publish piece 13. Then edit and export all five new clips at 720p with captions, and save them into the Bank folder.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Ten finished pieces now sit in the Bank folder, which means ten days of publishing cannot be stopped by a slow connection.

OUTPUT Ten finished pieces in the Bank. Piece 13 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Ten finished pieces are saved
- [ ] Each has captions and is exported at 720p
- [ ] I know the file size of a typical piece

DAY 14 Two-week review, and one real question to your audience

OBJECTIVE Find out whether you are building trust, and test demand before you build anything paid.

TASK Publish piece 14. Then post the validation question from Section 5.5 in your Telegram channel. Ask what people would want covered first if you made something paid. Count replies, not likes.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Nine replies in two days, six of them describing the same problem. That is a green light for a small product.

OUTPUT A written count of replies and a note of the most common answer. Piece 14 published.

CHECK

- [ ] I have a real number of replies
- [ ] I know which problem was mentioned most often
- [ ] I have not decided to build anything yet, based on politeness

10.4 Days 15 to 22: proof, prices and the first approaches

DAY 15 Write your price list

OBJECTIVE Stop improvising prices in a conversation.

TASK Publish piece 15. Then write three packages with prices and the hours each one takes you, using Section 5.3. Post the price list as your second pinned Telegram message.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Ten photos at $16, four videos at $25, a month at $55. Labelled examples, chosen by that creator, not a market rate.

OUTPUT A three-line price list with hours attached, pinned in your channel. Piece 15 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Three packages, no more
- [ ] I know the hours behind each one
- [ ] I can say each price out loud without apologising

DAY 16 Make a proof piece

OBJECTIVE Give a buyer something they can look at and immediately understand.

TASK Publish piece 16 as a before-and-after: the same subject shot badly and shot well, or a process clip that shows the work finishing. Add one line saying you do this for [type of business] in [city].

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. The same plate of food, twice. The second photograph is the one that produces direct messages.

OUTPUT One proof piece published and pinned on at least one platform. Piece 16 published.

CHECK

- [ ] A stranger can tell what I sell from this one post
- [ ] The comparison is honest, not a rigged before
- [ ] My city and buyer type are in the caption

DAY 17 Build the one-page media kit

OBJECTIVE Have one page ready for the moment a business asks about your numbers.

TASK Publish piece 17. Then calculate your median views over your last twenty posts, and fill in the media kit template in Section 6.2. Save it as a single image so it opens instantly on any phone.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. 6,000 followers, median 900 views, and an honest media kit that closes small deals.

OUTPUT A one-image media kit on your phone, ready to send. Piece 17 published.

CHECK

- [ ] My median is calculated, not guessed
- [ ] The kit fits on one page and opens quickly on a phone
- [ ] Every number on it is real

DAY 18 Three-week review

OBJECTIVE Decide what to keep and what to drop before the final push.

TASK Publish piece 18. Then answer four questions in writing: which pillar produced the most profile visits, which format takes me the longest, which piece did I enjoy making, and which piece produced a direct message. Drop one thing and double down on one thing.

OUTPUT One thing dropped and one thing doubled, written down. Piece 18 published.

CHECK

- [ ] I have named one thing I will stop doing
- [ ] I have named one thing I will do more of
- [ ] Both decisions come from numbers, not mood

DAY 19 First service approaches

OBJECTIVE Convert your audience advantage into a real conversation with a buyer.

TASK Publish piece 19. Then send the outbound message from Section 5.2 to three businesses from your list, including your reach figure and one specific observation each. Offer a small paid sample.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Three messages, one reply asking for a price, one "send me your Telegram", one silence. That is a normal day.

OUTPUT Three personalised messages sent, logged with dates. Piece 19 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Each message names something specific about that business
- [ ] Each states a price, not "let us discuss"
- [ ] I am not waiting by the phone. I have tomorrow to work on

DAY 20 Follow up once, and build the kit

OBJECTIVE Learn that one polite follow-up is normal in business, not begging.

TASK Publish piece 20. Then send one short follow-up to each of yesterday's three messages: "Selam, checking whether this is useful to you. If not, no problem at all." Nothing more.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. One of the three replies to the follow-up. The others never do. One out of three, after one follow-up, is a reasonable outcome to plan around.

OUTPUT Three follow-ups sent, and no more follow-ups after this. Piece 20 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Each follow-up is one or two lines
- [ ] I did not send a third message
- [ ] I removed nobody from my list. They may say yes in two months

DAY 21 Lead-generation proposal

OBJECTIVE Open the path that works best with a small, trusting audience.

TASK Publish piece 21. Then send the per-lead agreement message from Section 6.7 to one business you already use and like. Propose a code word, a per-lead amount, and no upfront fee.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A guesthouse agrees to $1 per booking that mentions a code word, tracked on the booking sheet.

OUTPUT One written proposal sent. Piece 21 published.

CHECK

- [ ] The business can accept without spending money upfront
- [ ] There is a written tracking method
- [ ] I asked them to reply "agreed" so there is a record

DAY 22 Third batch film

OBJECTIVE Finish the month with a full buffer so the last week is about money, not filming.

TASK Publish piece 22. Then film pieces 26 to 30 and edit them the same day, following the Day 18 decision about what to double down on.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Five more pieces in the Bank, which means the final week needs no filming at all.

OUTPUT The Bank holds enough finished pieces to reach Day 30. Piece 22 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Every remaining day has a finished piece ready
- [ ] Nothing needs to be filmed in the final week
- [ ] My remaining pieces follow the pillar mix from Section 3.1

10.5 Days 23 to 30: the first monetization attempt

DAY 23 Ask for the money, in writing

OBJECTIVE Make one clear offer with a price and a date. This is the day most people avoid.

TASK Publish piece 23. Then send one direct offer to the warmest person in your entire conversation list — a reply, a commenter, a business that asked a question. State what you deliver, the price, and a start date. Ask for a yes or a no.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. "Four videos, $25, I can start Monday. Do you want it?" One sentence, one price, one date.

OUTPUT One direct offer sent, with a price and a date. Piece 23 published.

CHECK

- [ ] A price is in the message
- [ ] A date is in the message
- [ ] The ask is clear enough that "yes" is a complete reply

DAY 24 Sponsorship approach

OBJECTIVE Test the sponsorship path with one real proposal.

TASK Publish piece 24. Then send the sponsorship proposal from Section 6.4 to one local business, with a code word for tracking and a small entry option.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional spice shop is offered three videos for $25, or one video for $9 as a smaller start.

OUTPUT One proposal sent and logged. Piece 24 published.

CHECK

- [ ] The proposal names a real reach figure from my own analytics
- [ ] There is a tracking method that does not rely on memory
- [ ] There is a smaller option they can accept today

DAY 25 Community or consulting offer

OBJECTIVE Open one path that pays for expertise rather than reach.

TASK Publish piece 25. Then choose one: either post the community launch message from Section 7.4 in your channel, or send the workshop pitch to a local business. One, not both.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator offers a three-hour workshop for $35 for up to twelve staff, and asks for a date two weeks out.

OUTPUT Either a community launch post or a workshop pitch sent. Piece 25 published.

CHECK

- [ ] The offer names a deliverable and a price
- [ ] The community version names two fixed weekly items
- [ ] The workshop version asks for a specific date

DAY 26 Answer everything

OBJECTIVE Clear every open conversation before the final push.

TASK Publish piece 26. Then answer every direct message, every channel reply and every comment you have not answered. For each open money conversation, send one clear next step.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A fictional creator finds three conversations she had forgotten, and one of them converts into a small paid job that week.

OUTPUT An empty inbox and a written next step for every open deal. Piece 26 published.

CHECK

- [ ] No unanswered message remains
- [ ] Every money conversation has a named next step and a date
- [ ] I have not left anyone waiting more than a day

DAY 27 Second ask, different person, different path

OBJECTIVE Stop relying on one conversation to work.

TASK Publish piece 27. Then make a second monetization attempt using a different path from the one you tried on Day 23. If you asked for a service, now offer a small digital product. If you offered a product, now propose a lead arrangement.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. After a service offer, the same creator pre-sells a 25-page guide for $1.50 to her channel, taking payment before writing it.

OUTPUT A second offer sent, on a second path. Piece 27 published.

CHECK

- [ ] This offer uses a different path from Day 23
- [ ] The price is stated plainly
- [ ] I can deliver it within one week if somebody says yes

DAY 28 Deliver something, and prove it

OBJECTIVE Turn one yes into a delivered job and a piece of real proof.

TASK Publish piece 28. If anyone has said yes to anything, deliver it today, on the date you promised, and send a short report afterwards. If nobody has said yes yet, deliver one sample job for yourself and label it clearly as a sample.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. The first paid job is delivered a day early, with a one-page report listing what was made and how many people saw it.

OUTPUT One delivered piece of work and one report. Piece 28 published.

CHECK

- [ ] I delivered on or before the promised date
- [ ] I sent a written report, not just a file
- [ ] Everything unpaid is labelled as a sample

DAY 29 Four-week review, honestly

OBJECTIVE Decide month two from evidence rather than from how you feel.

TASK Publish piece 29. Then write your real numbers: pieces published, channel members, profile visits, direct messages received, conversations started, offers made, things sold. Write what worked and what did not, in one page.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. Thirty pieces, 140 channel members, nine conversations, one paid job worth $25. Modest and real.

OUTPUT A one-page honest review with real numbers. Piece 29 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Every number in the review is real
- [ ] I have written one thing I will stop doing
- [ ] I have written the one path I am continuing with

DAY 30 Finish, and plan month two

OBJECTIVE Close the sprint properly and set a cadence you can hold without a deadline.

TASK Publish piece 30. Post an honest summary in your Telegram channel: what you made, what you learned, what is coming. Then write your month-two plan using 10.6 below.

EXAMPLE Example scenario — fictional. A public summary that names the two things that worked and the one thing that did not, posted without exaggeration.

OUTPUT Thirty published pieces and a written month-two plan. Piece 30 published.

CHECK

- [ ] Thirty pieces exist and are published, not banked
- [ ] My channel has members who are not friends or family
- [ ] I have made at least two real monetization attempts
- [ ] I have a written cadence with a floor I will not drop below

10.6 The honest month-two plan

Month one was a sprint with a deadline. Month two is a rhythm, and it is designed around the fact that you are tired, you have other obligations, and nothing dramatic has happened yet.

WEEK	CONTENT	MONEY WORK	WHAT YOU ARE TRYING TO LEARN
Week 5	Three pieces a week, one from each of your two best pillars plus one proof piece	Follow up on every open conversation from month one, once	Which pillar produces direct messages rather than views
Week 6	Three pieces, all inside your best-performing format	Send five new approach messages to businesses from your list	Whether your reply rate changes when your content is more focused
Week 7	Three pieces, plus one long piece: a ten-minute walkthrough or a written guide	Deliver the first repeat job, or offer one to a previous client	Whether people will pay twice, which is the only real proof of value
Week 8	Three pieces, and a public month-two summary	Raise your price for the next new client, and see what happens	Where your price actually sits. You cannot know without testing it once

MONTH TWO, STATED HONESTLY

Most people who finish thirty days of publishing do not have a business at the end of it. They have an audience, a body of work, a repeatable process, a few real conversations, and honest data about what their market responds to. That is a genuine asset, and it is the thing that makes month three different from month one.

Some people will have earned something by Day 30. Some will not. Neither outcome is a verdict on you, and neither is a promise about month two. What is certain is that you cannot get to month two without finishing month one.

Common Mistakes and How to Fix Them

Sixteen mistakes that cost creators in countries like yours reach, money or reputation, and the fix for each one.

MISTAKE	WHAT IT COSTS YOU	THE FIX
Building an audience with no money path chosen	Months of posting that cannot convert, because your content speaks to viewers instead of buyers	Choose one of the six paths on day one, and check every piece against it
Chasing views instead of buyers	A large, cheap audience that will never pay for anything	Track saves, shares, profile visits and direct messages. Ignore likes
Copying a trend with no connection to your niche	Followers who followed you for something you do not sell	Only use a trend if you can connect it to what you offer in one sentence
Starting every video with an introduction	Viewers leave before the value arrives, and the algorithm stops showing your work	Start on the value. Cut the greeting, the welcome and the channel name
Uploading full-resolution video on a metered bundle	Failed uploads, wasted data, and days when nothing gets posted	Set camera and editor to 720p, and check the file size before every upload
Posting between 16:00 and 24:00	Uploads that stall when speeds fall as low as 98 Kb/s	Upload in the morning. Publish from the content bank saved on your device
Building everything on one platform	One block or one account problem removes your entire audience	Point every profile at a Telegram channel, and save your contacts in your phone
Waiting for a large following before selling	Months of unpaid work before the first conversation about money	Make the first offer in week three, at whatever size your account is

MISTAKE	WHAT IT COSTS YOU	THE FIX
Quoting from follower count	Sponsorship rejections, because the buyer checks and finds the reach is far smaller	Quote your median views over your last twenty posts, and explain what median means
Leaving a price question unanswered	A buyer concludes you are expensive or not serious, and disappears	Answer every price question within a day, with a number and a package
Working with nothing in writing	Disputes about how many posts, when, and how much, that you cannot win	One-page agreement, confirmed by a reply that says "agreed"
Sending money to a "growth service"	Money gone, followers that do not exist, and an account flagged for fake engagement	Refuse all of it. Real growth comes from publishing. There is no shortcut being sold honestly

MISTAKE	WHAT IT COSTS YOU	THE FIX
Using other people's footage or music without a licence	Takedowns, lost reach, and a client who does not want to work with you again	Use the platform audio library, film your own footage, and keep receipts for anything you pay for

MISTAKE	WHAT IT COSTS YOU	THE FIX
Not disclosing a paid partnership	Lost trust, platform penalties, and a sponsor who will not repeat	Disclose in the first two lines of the caption, in plain words

MISTAKE	WHAT IT COSTS YOU	THE FIX
Making health, money or legal claims you cannot support	Real harm to real people, and consequences for you that no fee covers	Describe what you did and what happened for you. Tell people to consult a professional
Replying to attacks at midnight	A screenshot that outlives the argument and follows you for years	Keep three saved replies. Reply once or not at all. Never post a person's details

FAQ — Honest Answers

How many followers do I need to earn?

There is no number, and anyone who gives you one is guessing. A service business can be sold with a few hundred followers, because the buyer is one person, not a market. A digital product usually needs more trust, which takes weeks. Lead generation needs very little reach and a lot of trust. What matters is not the size of the audience but whether the right few people are in it.

Can I make money from TikTok where you live?

Yes, but not from TikTok. TikTok's Creator Rewards programme is gated to roughly fourteen countries with none in Africa, and TikTok Shop is live in sixteen countries with zero African markets. You can make money on TikTok by using it to reach people who then pay you directly for a service, a product, a sponsorship or a lead. That is the whole model of this course.

What about YouTube ad revenue?

your country is not on the availability list for the YouTube Partner Program, so the standard ad-revenue route is closed. Many creators in countries like yours register accounts in other countries to work around this, which is a compliance risk they carry themselves. Reported CPM for local traffic is around USD 1.01, which shows how little advertising values this audience even where ads exist. Treat YouTube as a place to build trust and to host long content, not as a payment source.

Do I need to show my face?

No, but be clear about the limits. Faceless content works well for teaching a skill, showing a process, demonstrating a product and selling a digital product. It struggles with service clients, consulting and sponsorships, because all three require a person on the other end to know who they are dealing with. If your chosen path is service or consulting, plan to appear on camera or at least in voice before you ask for money.

How long until I earn?

Nobody can tell you, and this course will not pretend otherwise. What it can tell you is what the work looks like: thirty published pieces, real conversations, two monetization attempts, and honest numbers at the end of the month.

Some people will have earned by then. Some will not. The people who earn are usually the ones still publishing in month two.

What if I have no ideas?

You do not have an ideas problem, you have a system problem. Use the five pillars in Section 3.1 and rotate them. Write thirty rows into the calendar template on one sitting. Then you never start a day without knowing what to post, which is the only reason "no ideas" ever stops anybody.

Should I buy followers?

No, and not only because it is dishonest. Bought followers do not watch, do not save, do not share and do not buy. They damage the ratio platforms use to decide whether to show your content to anyone else. They can get your account flagged for fake engagement. And any local business that checks your comments will see the mismatch. There is no version of this that works.

Can I do this on a phone with 2 GB of data?

Yes, and this course is written for exactly that. A 2 GB monthly bundle is around $0.60 on an indicative published guide. Stay at 720p, keep pieces short, batch so you upload several at once, compress before uploading, edit offline, and do your reading and planning without data. Watch your usage for one week and you will know your real number.

What if the platform is blocked?

It has happened repeatedly: a nationwide block of Facebook, Telegram, TikTok and YouTube from February to July 2023, the Amhara Region shutdown from July 2023 to July 2024, localised Oromia shutdowns, and reports of slowing and YouTube restrictions in several cities in June 2025. Freedom House scored your country 30 out of 100, "Not Free", in Freedom on the Net 2025. The answer is preparation, not a workaround: build on more than one platform, hold your audience in Telegram, save your contacts in your phone and on paper, and keep a bank of finished pieces on your device.

How do I get sponsors?

You approach them, they rarely approach you. List ten local businesses that sell to your audience, calculate your median views, build a one-page media kit, and send a proposal with a price, a tracking method and a small entry option. Ask for a yes to the next small step, not to the whole deal. Get paid before the first post, and send a short report afterwards.

Do I need to speak the local language or English?

Use the language your buyer uses. For local service clients and sponsorship, the local language and other local languages reach more of the market, and the local language caption often outperforms an English one with a local audience. For digital products aimed at students or professionals, English is often expected alongside the local language. If you are not confident writing in one of them, keep the sentences short rather than reaching for words you cannot check.

Is it too late to start?

Only 9.80 million social media identities exist where you live, which is 7.2% of the population and 13.2% of adults. Roughly 107 million people in this country are not online at all.

Whatever the market looks like today, it is a fraction of what it will be. "Too late" describes markets where everyone is already served. That is not this one.

Do I need a business licence?

For local service work and small digital sales, no. You can receive payment by person-to-person wallet transfer or bank transfer as an individual, within your regulator limits. A merchant payment gateway, however, requires a registered business with a trade licence, a TIN and a Memorandum of Association, and no verified gateway onboards an unlicensed individual. A TIN is mandatory, and turnover tax and VAT rules may apply to you. Confirm your own position at your local tax office.

How do I get paid, exactly?

Local buyers pay by wallet or bank transfer, and you send a receipt back. For anything international, your regulator-licensed remittance corridor is the verified route. PayPal, Payoneer, Wise and Stripe as a direct receiving rail into your country is not verified, and this course will not claim otherwise. Crypto is prohibited where you live unless expressly authorised. Telegram Stars can be used to receive payment for digital goods through bots, but withdrawing Stars routes through crypto, so treat that as a rail with a serious catch rather than a business model.

Is this a scam?

This course makes no income promise, states plainly that platform ad revenue is closed to creators in countries like yours, labels every figure as an example or a source-backed statistic, and tells you repeatedly which facts it could not verify. Judge it on that. Any course that promises you earnings, shows you screenshots of somebody's income, or tells you there is a shortcut is the one you should be suspicious of.

How to Spot a Fake Opportunity

Creators are targeted because they want growth and they are used to paying for tools and data. These are the specific traps, in the order you are most likely to meet them.

The traps aimed at creators

TRAP	HOW IT WORKS	WHAT TO DO
"Grow your account" services	Someone on Telegram or Instagram offers followers, views or "real engagement" for a fee	Refuse. Bought engagement does not buy, does not watch, and can get your account flagged. Real growth comes from publishing, and there is no honest shortcut being sold
Bought followers and engagement pods	You join a group where members like and comment on each other's posts to look popular	Refuse. It produces numbers that mean nothing to a buyer, and a local business that checks your comments will notice the same twenty accounts
"Verification" scams	A message claims you qualify for a verified badge and asks for a fee, your password, or your ID documents	Verification is not sold, and no platform asks for a payment or your password to grant it. Report and block

Fake brand-deal DMs	An account claiming to be a brand offers a paid partnership, then asks for your login, a "registration fee", or a link you must click to "confirm the collaboration"	Legitimate sponsors do not ask for your password or a fee. Ask for a company name, an email on the company's own domain, and a phone call before you agree to anything

TRAP	HOW IT WORKS	WHAT TO DO
Agencies that charge you to represent you	An "agency" offers to find you brand deals for an upfront fee, a monthly retainer, or a share of deals they never find	A legitimate agency earns a commission on work it actually brings you. Money should flow towards you, not away from you, before any work exists

TRAP	HOW IT WORKS	WHAT TO DO
Account-rental offers	Somebody offers to pay you a monthly fee to post their content on your account, or to "borrow" your account for advertising	Refuse. You lose control of what is published under your name, you may be promoting something illegal, and platforms suspend accounts for this
Telegram "investment" and crypto channels	Groups promising returns from trading, mining, arbitrage or a "digital investment pool", usually with screenshots of profits	Refuse, and remove it from your own community. Virtual-asset activity is prohibited where you live unless expressly authorised, and unlicensed money remittance is illegal and punishable
Phishing links disguised as collaborations	A message says a brand wants to work with you and asks you to log in through a link to "view the brief"	Never log in through a link you were sent. Open the app yourself and check whether the offer exists inside it
The Telegram account-takeover scam	Criminals pose as Telegram security staff, ask for your password and a one-time code, seize your account, then message your contacts asking for money in your name	This is documented in the local press. No legitimate platform, bank, wallet or client ever asks for your one-time code. Turn on two-step verification today

Fraud warnings that apply to you directly

THE YOUR CENTRAL BANK OR FINANCIAL REGULATOR'S WARNING

The your regulator has publicly warned that fraudsters impersonate people on WhatsApp, Telegram, Facebook, email and SMS, and through fake phone calls, to request urgent transfers. It cites Proclamation 1359/2025 Article 6(28) and the your financial-consumer-protection rules. Report suspected fraud to `your regulator's complaint address` or call `6230`. Treat every urgent payment request as fraudulent until you have confirmed it by calling the person on a number you already had.

IF YOUR ACCOUNT IS TAKEN

Tell your clients and your channel by phone immediately, on the day it happens, before the criminal messages them asking for money in your name. Then work through the platform's own recovery process. Do not pay anybody who offers to "get your account back" for a fee, because that is the same scam in a second act.

The eight-point legitimacy checklist

Before you accept a client, a collaboration, a sponsor or a "growth" offer, work through all eight. If two or more fail, walk away.

- [ ] They can name their business, and it exists when you search for it
- [ ] They will speak on a phone call, not only by text
- [ ] They never ask for your password, your one-time code, or access to your account
- [ ] They never ask you to pay a fee in order to receive money or work
- [ ] They accept a written scope and payment before you deliver
- [ ] They do not ask you to misrepresent where you are, or to use somebody else's account or identity
- [ ] They do not ask you to promote crypto, trading, or an "investment" arrangement
- [ ] Their offer does not require you to keep it secret from your audience or your family

FINAL CHALLENGE

Final Challenge: Publish 30 Pieces of Content

Thirty pieces. Thirty days. One published every day, no exceptions and no catch-up days.

What counts as a finished piece

It counts if

- [ ] It is published where somebody other than you can see it
- [ ] It has a hook that names a specific person or problem in the first three seconds
- [ ] It carries one idea, not three
- [ ] It has captions or on-screen text, so it works with the sound off
- [ ] It is exported at 720p and the file size is reasonable
- [ ] It ends with exactly one next step
- [ ] It went out on the day you planned, not three of them at once on a Sunday

It does not count if

- It is saved as a draft
- It is sitting in your editor waiting for one more fix
- It is a repost of somebody else's work with your caption on it
- It is three pieces published in one hour to make up for two missed days
- It is a screenshot of a quote with no connection to your niche
- It exists only in your head, planned for tomorrow

WHAT THIS CHALLENGE DOES AND DOES NOT PROMISE

Publishing thirty pieces of content does not guarantee income. It does not guarantee followers, views, sponsors, clients or sales, and nobody can promise you those things honestly. What it does guarantee is that at the end of thirty days you will have thirty published pieces, a working process, real numbers about what your audience responds to, a Telegram channel with members, and at least one conversation with somebody who might pay you.

That is a real asset. Whether it becomes money depends on your niche, your skill, your market and things you do not control. Finish the thirty anyway. It is the only entry ticket there is.

CLOSING

Next Steps

You now have an audience, a process and a chosen money path. The next course depends on which one you picked.

04 The Social Media Manager Starter Course

If your path is service, and businesses are asking you to run their pages rather than make one video, this is the next step. It covers packages, retainers, monthly reporting, client onboarding and the conversations that turn one job into a monthly arrangement.

06 Sell Digital Products From your country

If your path is digital products, and your validation question produced real replies, this is the next step. It covers building the product, pricing it, packaging it, delivering it, and handling refunds and piracy without losing your audience.

09 The local Online Service Business

If your path is local clients, whether through services, leads or consulting, this is the next step. It covers finding clients across cities, quoting, contracting, invoicing, handling payments, and the paperwork questions that come up once real money is moving.

10 The $500 Digital Business Challenge

If you finished the thirty days and want the full build with a target attached, this is the next step. It sets out the complete challenge with a target that is a target, not a guarantee, and it holds you to the same standard of honest reporting you practised here.

IF YOU ONLY DO ONE THING NEXT

Open your Telegram channel and post the number you are actually at: pieces published, members, conversations started, money earned. No exaggeration, no rounding up. Then post the same number again in thirty days. That habit, repeated monthly, is worth more than any single course, because it is the only way you will ever know which of your own decisions is working.

FINAL CHALLENGE

Final Challenge: Publish 30 Pieces of Content

Thirty finished pieces in thirty days. Not thirty drafts, not thirty ideas — thirty things published where somebody could see them.

01 Define the niche, set up the profile, and publish the first five pieces from your strongest pillar.

02 Publish daily. Rotate pillars. Read the analytics that matter: watch time, saves, shares, profile visits, direct messages. Ignore likes.

03 Test three hooks against each other. Keep the one that produced the most saves, and write ten more variations of it.

05 Make the first monetization attempt: offer a service, announce a product, or approach one sponsor with a media kit.

06 Log every post with its format, pillar, hook type and the one metric that matters. Thirty rows of your own data beats any advice about what works.

Publishing thirty pieces does not guarantee income, and it certainly does not guarantee followers. What it produces is a content bank, a tested hook, and thirty rows of evidence about what your specific audience responds to. That evidence is the asset.

What this course is

A practical, your country-specific system for building an audience on TikTok, Instagram and Telegram and then converting that audience into money that can actually reach a local bank or wallet. It covers niche selection, profile setup, content pillars, hooks, short-form video, faceless formats, storytelling, community building, and six separate monetization paths, each with the honest mechanics and the honest risks.

What this course is not

It is not a promise that followers become income. It is not a guide to platform ad revenue, because your country is not included in YouTube\u2019s Partner Program, TikTok\u2019s Creator Rewards is limited to roughly fourteen countries with none in Africa, and Meta\u2019s in-stream ads rolled out to Kenya, Nigeria and Ghana but not your country. It is not financial, legal or investment advice, and it does not guarantee reach, followers, sponsors or sales.

DISCLAIMER — READ THIS ONCE, PROPERLY

This course is educational material only. Nothing in it is a guarantee of income, and nothing in it is financial, legal or investment advice.

Every follower count, view count, sponsorship fee and income figure in this book is a target example or a clearly labelled illustration, never a prediction about your account. Reach is controlled by platforms you do not own, and monetization reach is controlled by rules that change without notice. The course teaches the converter, not the lottery.

All prices, rates and ladders shown in this book are illustrative examples for teaching. You are responsible for complying with local law, your tax obligations, the terms of service of any platform you use, and the requirements of any bank, wallet or payment provider you deal with. Rules, fees, limits and country availability change, sometimes quickly.

Where the underlying research could not verify a fact, this book says so and tells you to check it yourself. Those gaps were left as gaps deliberately.

DATES, CURRENCY AND EXAMPLES

All money in this course is US US dollars (USD), written as $25. Where a United States dollar figure appears it states its rate and its date on the same line.

Every business named anywhere in these pages is invented. Each is labelled Example scenario — fictional. No real, recognisable local company is presented as a client, a case study or a testimonial.

BEFORE YOU RELY ON ANY OF THIS

Payment limits, wallet rules, tax thresholds and platform availability are the parts of this book most likely to go stale. Treat every number as a starting point for your own check, not as a substitute for it. Where this book names a rule, confirm the current version with the institution that made it.
